FRANCE.

Gambetta in Paris—Probable Commutation of Cremieux's Sentence—Rouher's Circular—Comment on the Review at Longchamps.

PARIS, June 30—A. M.—M. GAMBETTA arrived here yesterday. He has received many visits from both official and unofficial personages. His speech at Bordeaux was upon the subject of the development of education in France, and was received with hearty approval and great applause. The sentence of death imposed upon M. CREMIEUX by the Court-martial in session at Marseilles, will probably be commuted. The work of renovating Paris is progressing. Fully 60,000 masons are engaged in repairing the damaged buildings and erecting new ones. The city is also being thoroughly disinfected. The circular of M. ROUHER to the electors affirms that he is the defender of the principles of free trade. In relation to the future ferm of Government, he says the nation must decide upon it after the elections have been held, and the question of free trade been decided upon. He denounced the opponents of this policy as mere factions. The Official Journal of today, in commenting on the review at Longchamps, remarks that, "We have shown Europe an army 100,000 strong, valorous, and ably commanded, which has saved the cause of civilization. We have also called for two milliards of money, and been offered five milliards. The nation evidently recovers." The journals of Paris and Versailles express satisfaction at the success of the review.

LONDON, June 30.—The correspondents of the London Press all agree that the review at Longchamps and the French loan were both successful. One of the writers says that the thought of revenge upon Germany is uppermost in the minds of the Parisians, who still hope for an opportunity to readjust the frontier.

M. Thiers' State Dinner—A German Journal Told to Mind Its Own Affairs.

PARIS, June 30.—The dinner given by President THIERS after the review, yesterday, was a brilliant affair. It was attended by nearly all the Generals and Colonels of the army in and near Paris, and by the members of the Ministry, and many prominent Deputies of the National Assembly. The utmost cordiality of feeling prevailed. The French journals resent the censures of the North German Gazette on the military expenditures of France. They maintain that the question concerns France only.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Liverpool Chamber of Commerce on the Cable Tolls—Halifax and the Treaty of Washington—A Cabmen's Strike Apprehended.

LONDON, June 30.—At a meeting of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce today, a preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted to the following effect:

Whereas, The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has learned with surprise that high cable rates are sustained when all the Atlantic cables are working; therefore,

Resolved, That the officers of this body be authorized and directed to make representations in the matter to the Government, and to ask the aid of the Chambers of Commerce of Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Glasgow and Edinburgh.

The statement is officially confirmed that Halifax will, now that the Treaty of Washington has been ratied, soon cease to be the rendezvous for the British North American fleet, and that the force in Canadian waters will be reduced to the Commodore's ship..... Another strike of the London cabmen is apprehended.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

Greece and Turkey—The Wurtemberg Troops Enter Stuttgart in Triumph.

STUTTGART, June 30.—The Würtemberg troops made their triumphal entry yesterday to this capital. The city, which was crowded with people from all parts of the kingdom, was splendidly decorated, and at night was brilliantly illuminated.

LONDON, June 30.—It is reported that the difficulty between Greece and Turkey, arising from the appointment of M. TRICOPRIS as Greek Ambassador to Constantinople, and the refusal of the Porte to receive him in that capacity, has been amicably arranged, and that the two countries are now on good terms.

PARISIAN GOSSIP.

Scenes of the Day—Trade of the Hour—In the Streets—Art News—The Luxembourg Saved—Courbet the Communist—Artists' Movements and Adventures.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

PARIS, Sunday, June 11, 1871.

Strangers arriving in Paris during the last week are surprised to find so few signs of the recent struggle. The barricades have been leveled, and the only trace of them is the newly-paved streets. New trees have been set out to replace those destroyed, and the painters and glaziers are doing a thriving business. The Rue Royale ten days ago was blocked by ruined buildings and barricades. Now, it has more the appearance of a demolition by HAUSSMANN for a new boulevard than the work of an incendiary mob. The hackmen have raised their price, and will not stop for a modest-looking person carrying a bundle, but are on the continual lookout for strangers who wish to visit the ruins.

TRADE OF THE DAY.

The briskest trade at present is in photographs of Paris as it is, and portraits of the leaders of the Commune. Here every morning form a queue, and wait for copies at the photographers, as at the opera for tickets during some famous prima donna's engagement. Many of the windows display relics of the war, such as inkstands and vases made from exploded bombs, but the trade is not lively yet. Englishmen do not buy, but they hope that the numerous Americans who are expected to arrive will patronize them, though the prices are high. As yet there are no new fashions; the stores display last year's goods, and the ladies wear last year's dresses.

IN THE STREETS.

The boulevards are full of people who have returned to Paris, but as yet the Champs Elysées are deserted. On pleasant afternoons it was crowded by promenaders and carriages on their way to and from the Bois. Now the Bois is occupied by troops, and the loiterers congregate around the ruined palaces. Punch and Judy has a mixed audience, and two or three gingerbread-stalls have opened, but with apparent little capital invested. Every entrance to the city is crowded daily with returning Parisians and sight-seers, who, as DUMAS fils say, have come to see "l'Exposition Universelle de la Bêtise Humaine."

ART GOSSIP.

GOUPIL has again opened, and displays some new pictures, painted during the siege. Mr. GOUPIL's house at Bougival was destroyed, and his atélier of photography received thirty shells. ARMAND and RUEL have nothing new as yet, but exhibit a fine collection of bronzes on the Rue de la Paix. GIROUX has commenced the repairs necessary, as his windows were shattered by bullets, which penetrated to the inner rooms, smashing mirrors and otherwise defacing their establishment. It is wonderful what taste can be displayed in repairing broken glass. Bullets striking an ordinary pane pierce it, leaving a round hole, but plate-glass offers such a resistance that a ball going through not only drills a hole, but cracks in every direction. Some of the plate-glass shop-windows have received many shots, and are temporarily patched with fancifully-cut papers, with a "Ne touchez pas S. V. P." The iron shutters offered very little resistance to the Chassepot balls.

THE LUXEMBOURG SAVED.

The Palace of the Luxembourg has been damaged but the pictures are safe. The intention of the Commune was to blow up the palace. On Monday an officer of the Commune arrived in hot haste, ordering the palace to be cleared of the sick and wounded. The officer commanding the ambulance remonstrated, as there was no place for them to be removed to, but orders were peremptory as the palace must be blown up. Some of the guardians of the museum then remonstrated with the insurgents, trying to make them understand that the picture galleries belonged to the world, and consequently they should not destroy them. They were shot for interfering. The Versailles troops entered before they were able to carry out their destructive programme and the palace was saved. The red flag was torn down, and the staff now serves as a canvas roller in the little color-shop in the Rue Condé, well known to art students.

COURBET, THE COMMUNIST.

COURBET, the painter, was the instigator of the destruction of the Column Vendome. For five years he expounded that idea, but when Père Duchêne took it up, and he found it was to be carried out, he was for shirking the responsibility. When the struggle of the Communists was over, it was said he perished in defense of one of the barricades, and such was considered to be his fate, until one morning there was a notice of his capture in a wardrobe, and of his being pulled out and summarily executed. We gave another sigh—was it of relief or pain?—that his fate was at last certain. Next morning we learned it was not COURBET, but another of the leading Communists. One of the un sou papers told, a few days after, of COURBET being conducted on foot to Versailles. Owing to the warm weather and the amount of flesh he carried, he was very much exhausted by the journey, and asked for a drink of water. He drank and expired! We were told later, from Prussian sources, that he had escaped, and was on the way through the Prussian lines to visit BISMARCK, "who is a great friend of his." Later still, he had been captured by the Government troops. They were searching every house and every room, confiscating all arms found. Noticing a bed which did not set against the wall, they looked behind it, and there found MONS. COURBET, who always wished to be prominent, making himself as small as possible. He was immediately marched off to Versailles. I refuse to moralize until his capture is confirmed.

ARTISTS' MOVEMENTS.

MEISSONIER has returned to his studio outside of Paris. Nothing was injured, as he has a great reputation in Germany, so his place was respected by the Germans. ROSA BONHEUR stayed during the war at her place at Fontainebleau, and was not molested. EDWARD FRERE and SCHENCK were the only artists who remained in Ecouen. Their property was respected, but that of the other artists suffered greatly. FRERE and SCHENCK saved what furniture they could for others, and were several times arrested by the Prussian guard and put in the guard-house as "furniture thieves." FRERE, through all the German occupation has painted his petis bonhommes. Painting has become a second nature to him, if not the first, and through all the trouble of his country it seemed to him easier to keep busily painting than to occupy himself otherwise. Prussians came and went. Houses and woods were destroyed while he painted a child eating soup. Paris was in flames, and explosions shook his generally quiet village, but he went on painting a child clinging to her mother's dress. POTER, who served in the National Guard in Paris during the investment, has returned to find his beautiful place devastated and the Germans occupying his house and grounds. Getting what little furniture he could together, he has bravely commenced life again with one room as a kitchen and chamber, and what was once his salon for a studio, but now a wretched place, with the walls covered with German writing and caricatures. COUTURE is in the next town, not having suffered much; with an eye to the main chance, he has painted some portraits of the Prussian officers. GUSTAVE DORE has made some allegorical illustrations of the war. His studio escaped with some broken glasses. AUGUST BONHEUR has just finished a picture, (which is at GOUPIL's) of some cattle coming home after a shower. It is a very attractive painting; a bright light strikes on the cattle, who are reflected in the wet foreground, dark clouds, with a rainbow, giving a wonderful relief. EDWARD MAY is in London, busy with some other artists upon a panorama of the war. Every day welcomes back to Paris some familiar face, and in a few weeks Paris will resume its accustomed artistic exhibitions and reunions. H. B.

THE INTERNATIONAL.

Fresh Proclamations Issued in Paris—New Incitements to an Uprising.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, writing under date of June 18, refers to a manifesto attributed to the International Society, and already published in the TIMES, and gives other documents from the same source. He says: The document which I telegraphed yesterday, and which purported to be a manifesto by the Central Committee of the International, appeared in the Paris Journal, which maintains it to have been the result of a meeting held by the Committee on Thursday. M. TOLAIN, the nominee of the International in the Chamber, denies its authenticity, which is indignantly insisted upon this morning by the Paris Journal, which claims to have special access, the nature of which it cannot reveal, to the proceedings of the Revolutionary Committee known to exist in Paris, and which may hold meetings and issue manifestoes here, in spite of the police, with as much immunity as the National Committee did in Warsaw during the thirteen months of the Polish insurrection, baffling all efforts of the Police to discover either the names of the members or the localities in which the meetings were held. The objection of M. TOLAIN that the document is not authentic because there are no signatures is absurd, when attaching a signature to such a document would be equivalent to committing suicide. This morning three manifestoes appeared in the same journal, and purport to have been issued by three meetings of sections which were held yesterday. The first one is headed, "Comité Central de la Garde Nationale Fédérée de la Branche Française," and runs as follows:

CITIZENS: We are called barbarians; our enemies themselves have defined the struggle—our battle is the struggle of society against savagedom. We are called thieves, assassins and incendiaries. All the united members of the International Society of Workmen refuse to be likened to the bandits who have burnt Paris. Our struggle has been the struggle of honesty against cowardice, the war of workmen against the crushing despotism of capitalists. Today we are called beaten. This is impossible; but we must not be disunited. Our candidates should be advanced Republicans—our numbers should carry them. We propose, then, to name citizens MALON, TRIDON, and LARTIQUE. All have given proofs of democracy, and testified their affection for a social republic.

The others are as follows:

To the Citizen Workmen of Paris:

CITIZENS: The struggle of armies is at an end. We must acknowledge the reign of force while resisting it as much as lies in our power. It is our custom to give way. The powerful of the world are victorious through our inaction. Let us be the conquerors in spite of all obstacles. There are three systems now before us—the republican, the constitutional, and that of personal government. The best of the three is execrable. There is but one course for us to adopt. Let us rally round the International Association of Workmen, and vote for its candidates—MALON, TOLAIN, TRIDON, ROCHAT, SERAILLER, DELERD, SILVENT.

PARIS, June 16.

Central Committee of the Federation of the National Guard:

CITIZENS: For some days, thanks to your courage, we have been enabled to meet and to brave the fury of the reactionists. The victorious power is for you the legal power, as it is the Government de facto. We must now confine ourselves within the limits of legal action. To whom shall we give our votes? To those who, without being compromised, must be our allies. Citizens, workmen, bourgeois or handicraftsmen, the future is ours. It belongs to us, the Moderate Socialist Republicans. We do not seek the violent disruption of society; we desire that it should be perfected.

PARIS, June 16.

Besides the proclamations which emanate from the reunions of the International, there are others of an amateur character which are posted by individuals, and which indicate the temper of the party which has been crushed, but announces that it is only biding its time. The following was found yesterday posted up on the Boulevard Rochechouart, and also purports to issue from the Central Committee:

BROTHERS: In the name of our brethren assassinated by the despots of Versailles, in the name of humanity and of progress, we do not abandon the struggle. The reactionary journals are chaining victory; the forsworn of Versailles believe that we are crushed; it rests with you whether to-morrow they shall not be buried under the ruins of their ephemeral triumph. For that energy is needed. Our losses, indeed, have been great; but bear in mind that it is your inaction rather than our temporary defeat which places the Republic in danger. Will you defer your uprising until the plot which the despots of the world are hatching against you shall have entangled you in its extricable meshes? Do you wish that every night satellites, drunken with wine and debauchery, brutalized by the priests, shall enter your houses to seek for you with the intention of sending you to people all the Cayennes and Botany Bays which are yet known? Do you desire to leave your wives and daughters helplessly exposed to the brutalities of priests, and soldiers? Do you desire to see forever closed around you that circle of iron which, in a moment of despair, we for a time broke through? If so, remain inactive. If you will not, on the contrary, become free and powerful, as you ought to be! Would you wish to have the right of living by your labor? To arms—forward! Swear with us never to re-enter the workshop, not to resume your tools, not to lay down arms, until you have avenged your murdered brothers, and laid the base of the Social Republic. To arms, to arms—Lyons, Marseilles, Milan, Berlin, Moscow, London, Liverpool, Manchester! To arms, brothers of all countries! Down with tyrants and oppressors! Rely upon us—us who are looked upon as disarmed, because our muskets and our cannons have been taken from us. Those wretches, then, do not understand that when the day of revenge comes we will tear down the ruffinges of their palaces to convert into pikes, and that then we will bury ourselves beneath the ruins of Paris rather than surrender. Forward, the musket in one hand the torch in the other. The old civilization must perish. It will perish. Then the peoples, united in one single family, freed from yokes of all kinds, will enjoy in peace the fruits of labor.

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF PARIS.

THE RIVERSIDE SWINDLE.

Over $5,800,000 for a New Pleasure-Ground Alongside of Central Park—Where the Money Goes.

The Tammany Ring yesterday attempted to consummate a robbery of private property, which in boldness of conception and extent of the sums involved, has never been outdone even in their own infamous annals, unless it be by the kindred Broadway-widening swindle. Among the few who are cognizant of the plan of proceeding the present scheme is known as the Riverside Park job.

Riverside Park, as it exists on paper, is a narrow strip of land on the west side of the island, along the bank of the Hudson, running from Seventy-second to One Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street, nearly the whole of it being west of the Bloomingdale road. On one side runs the Hudson, which of itself furnishes all the advantages of light, air, circulation, &c.; and on the other, at no place more than three and a half blocks off, Central Park spreads out, extending from Fifty-ninth to Ninety-second and Tenth-street. Here it is proposed to locate this new pleasure-ground, at an expense which will reach $5,800,000 before a stone is turned. Of this ground one-half is to be extorted from the neighboring property-holders, while the other half is to be made a tax upon the City in general. One of the worst features of the whole thing is the way in which the assessment is made. The Park itself extends only from Seventy-second-street to One Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street, and lies west of Eleventh-avenue. It would seem that there was no spot on the habitable globe where a park was less needed than just there between the river and the finest Park in the world. A gentleman who owns several hundred thousand dollars' worth of property directly on the proposed line of the Park, says that he would not give $5 for all the good the improvement will do his property. He is assessed, however, for the job $20,000, and another still larger estate near him is assessed $60,000.

On the 21st of March, when it became evident that the plot was coming to a climax, a meeting of property-holders was held, where many millions of dollars' worth of the affected real estate was represented. An appeal was adopted, signed by 300 of the men who were the rightful owners of the lands and money about to be expended, and sent to the Department of Parks without much effect. It set forth the absurdity of the proposed "improvement," showing that, being within a moderate distance of Central Park, it offers no advantages or facilities to the public beyond those already afforded by that great and popular improvement. That it takes out of a desirable portion of New-York, space for residences for at least 15,000 people, and that the City (with its circumscribed limits and rapidly-increasing population, cannot afford to lose so much habitable land. That it removes from commercial use nearly three miles of river front—all means, with a few unimportant exceptions, of reaching the river from the east being entirely cut off by it. That the estimated expense connected with this opening amounts to more than $5,750,000; that one-half of this sum is to be assessed upon the land between Forty-second and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth streets, and the Ninth-avenue and Hudson River, while not one tithe of the land within these limits is in the slightest degree benefited by this opening. When the Supreme Court, over which Judge BARNARD presides, was applied to for a Commission of Assessments, it kindly deputed Messrs. HUGH SMITH, JAMES M. SWEENEY, and WM. M. TWEED, Jr. They completed their work, setting some value or other on every piece of property involved, and the books were left for inspection for forty days in the office of the Department of Public Works, and then closed. It is said that some of the political gentry interested called upon wealthy victims during this interval and offered to get their assessments diminished by large sums on condition that the negotiator should receive half. It is also stated that large pieces of property inside the proposed limits of the Park, which were almost worthless, but which happened to belong to certain friends of the Tammany ring leaders were valued at enormous sums in the last moment before the books closed. Persons acquainted with the nature of the Ring's proceedings will judge for themselves of the truth of these tales of plunder; but it is plain that if there was no plunder, they would not spend $5,800,000 to put a park where nobody wants it. For so small an item as $300,000, said to have gone as opening fees to Corporation Counsel, Surveyor and Commissioner, would not certainly pay such wealthy gentlemen for doing so much work for nothing.

A motion was to have been made yesterday in Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge BARNARD, to confirm the report of the above-named Commissioners of Award and Assessment; but as Judge BARNARD was obliged to sit in General Term, the argument was postponed until 10 o'clock this morning. The report is opposed on behalf of various property-owners, both as to the amount of assessments and awards. Messrs. DEVLIN, MILLER and TRULL appear to oppose the confirmation of the report on behalf of ANDREW CARRIGAN, Manhattan College, Rev. JOHN BREEN, heirs of DANIEL DEVLIN, EDWARD DONNELLY, Manhattan Iron-works and numerous others, while many other property-holders are represented by various counsel. The argument will probably occupy one, if not two, entire days. The only hope to arrest the proceedings is for the aggrieved parties to muster strong at Court and bring popular opinion to bear on this outrageous attempt to confiscate their property.

GENERAL NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

THE COREA.

Further Confirmation of the Capture of the Forts—Design of the Expedition.

BOMBAY, June 29.—A dispatch from Shanghai confirms the announcement of the capture of the Tsiang Hoa forts by the Americans with slight loss. The Coreans had 240 killed and a great many wounded.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—It is said in official circles that Minister LOW is with Admiral RODGERS at Corea. This is in accordance with instructions, as the design of the expedition was to open the way for a treaty with the Sovereign of that country, shipwrecked Americans on that coast being subjected to extremely cruel treatment. Although it is not known whether this Government anticipated hostilities, it seems certain that the conduct of Admiral RODGERS under the circumstances is approved.

THE INDIANS.

Lieut. Quinton's Grand Smoke with Siouxs and Assiniboins—Red Cloud's Influence Gone—The Indians Doubt His Account of What He Saw—Indications of Hostilities.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Secretary of the Interior received today from the War Department a copy of a very interesting official report by Lieut. QUINTON, Seventh Infantry, dated Fort Shaw, Montana, May 19, giving an account of his expedition in charge of supplies for Milk River Agency. At Fort Browning, May 4, STANDING BUFFALO, accompanied by other leading Chiefs of the Sioux, and RED STONE and LITTLE BULL of the Assiniboins, together with some 250 lodges of Santee and Yancton Sioux, came in for a grand smoke and council, at which they expressed an earnest desire for peace, but made strong appeals for powder and lead with which to shoot buffalo. Powder and lead, says Lieut. QUINTON, was the burden of their speeches. They said their old country was dead. There was no game there now, and they had left it for good. They claimed to be chiefs of whatever the buffalo wandered over. They had no settled home. They had been driven from Minnesota to the Missouri, and had been wandering ever since. Sometimes at peace with the white people, but more often fighting them. But if the Government would deal with them as they saw it was dealing with other Indians, they would be peaceable. STANDING BUFFALO said quite a number of his people understood farming, and had farmed before, and could farm again, but at present they wanted to go out after buffalo. These Indians, continues QUINTON, I understand, are but the advance guard of the Sioux nation, who are expected to settle in Montana. STANDING BUFFALO says they are all coming. The Teton Sioux, (or other side of the river Sioux,) under SITTING BULL, and numbering 800 lodges, are moving in this direction. SITTING BULL's band was formerly RED CLOUD's. It appears that RED CLOUD returned to his people with wonderful stories of what he had seen and heard while visiting the Great Father at Washington. RED CLOUD saw too much. The Indians say that these things cannot be, and that the white people must have put bad medicine over RED CLOUD's eyes to make him see everything and anything that pleased them, and so RED CLOUD lost his influence. The present Chief, SITTING BULL, has for his chief soldier a Sandwich Islander. They do not allow their tribe to make robes. After killing a buffalo the robe is cut into strips unless the killer desires the robe dressed for his own personal use. SITTING BULL is also at war with all Indians who trade or deal with whites, and all these Indians appear to be afraid of him, and he says he never will make peace with the whites. A constant traffic is kept up between the half-breeds from British territory, and all Indians of the Northwest. The half-breeds supply them with powder, lead, and an unlimited supply of rum in exchange for robes, &c. The Indians also receive large supplies of whisky from a set of men scattered along our own frontier, called "wolvers." The Indians at Milk River Agency talk very much now. How long they will remain peaceable and quiet is hard to say. I understand from people thoroughly conversant with their history that they have never been known to observe the terms of a treaty or compact longer than it suited their purposes. As soon as they found it to be to their interest to break it they broke it, and immediately sent out war parties to murder white people. While I was at Fort Browning, large supplies of coffee, sugar, flour, and other supplies were given them by Agent SIMMONS; but I am glad to state that he turned a deaf ear to their appeal for powder and lead. QUINTON then gives details of a recent desperate fight between three white men and about thirty-five Yanktonnai Indians near Mussel Shell, in which eleven of the latter and one white man were killed. Such conflicts are of very frequent occurrence in that vicinity.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

A Republican From Portsmouth Unseated—A Democrat Sustained—Senator Smith—Adjournment Till Wednesday.

CONCORD, N. H., June 30.—In the House this morning, the report of the Committee on Elections for unseating W.U. FLAGG, Republican, of Ward Two, Portsmouth, was adopted, with but few dissenting voices. In the case of W. W. MESSER, Democrat, of Northwood, the majority report giving him the seat was sustained. The Committee on Railroads has decided by a vote of 8 to 2 to refer the question of granting a charter to the Nashua, Manchester and Concord Railroad Company, to the next Legislature. Also, by a vote of 7 to 3, to report a bill for the Nashua and Acton Railroad. It is quite certain, this morning, that the Democratic leaders have decided not to commence any proceedings against Senator SMITH, as contemplated, and the time for final adjournment will be fixed for Saturday, July 8. The House, this afternoon, voted to adjourn till Monday evening, and then to 4 P. M. on Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—The Keklongas, of Fort Wayne, and the Olympics, of this city, played a beautiful game this afternoon. At the end of the fourth inning the score stood 2 to 1 in favor of the visitors, but in the fifth inning the Olympics, by a brilliant display of batting, secured 9 runs, 8 of which were earned. The Keklongas in this inning scored 8, leaving the game a tie. During the remaining innings the visitors secured 6 to the Olympic's 4, the game ending in favor of the Keklongas, 16 to 14. The Keklongas did the best fielding, and the Olympics excelled at the bat, earning 10 runs to the visitors' 4.

LOWELL, Mass., June 30.—The Eckfords, of Brooklyn, defeated the Clippers, of Lowell, this afternoon, by a score of 36 to 4.

NEW-HAVEN, June 30.—The time for the Harvard-Yale University ball match has been fixed for Wednesday, July 5, instead of July 4, as at first announced. The game is to be played at Hamilton Park, New-Haven.

BOSTON, June 30.—The Rose Hill Club of Fordham, N. Y., was defeated by the Harvards today, the score being Rose Hill 5, Harvard 20.

An Outlaw Shot in Colorado.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 30.—A noted prize-fighter and desperado who had long been a terror to the people of Central City, Erie, and other mining districts in Colorado, was shot dead at Erie on Saturday last by some person unknown. He went by the name of "LOONEY." On the day previous, LOONEY and a comrade named JIM GRAY brutally assaulted and maltreated Rev. Mr. VAN VALKENBURGH and another citizen. On Saturday LOONEY entered a saloon with a huge knife and a revolver, and commenced violent demonstrations against two other persons. While they were thus engaged, a rifle ball came whizzing through the open door and struck LOONEY in the side. He dropped to the floor dead. It is not known who fired the shot, but it is supposed that it was done by a member of the Vigilance Committee raised at Boulder to rid the country of the ruffians there. The death of LOONEY gives universal satisfaction.

THE FOURTH IN UTAH.

Proclamation Forbidding Armed Displays Except by Order of the Governor—Trouble Apprehended.

SALT LAKE, June 30.—The Tribune of tomorrow morning will contain a proclamation issued by Hon. GEORGE A. BLACK, Secretary and Acting Governor, forbidding all musters, parties or gathering of the militia of Utah, or of armed persons within the Territory, except by the Governor's orders or by order of the United States Marshal in case a posse comitatus is required to enforce the order of the Court. This proclamation has been issued in view of certain orders of DANIEL H. WELLS, calling himself Lieutenant-General, an office not recognized by the Government, which orders out three companies of infantry, one of artillery and one of cavalry, ostensibly to participate in the Mormon procession on the Fourth of July. WELLS usurps power in ordering out the militia, since Gov. SHAFFER appointed Gen. CONNOR commander of the militia, and the assembling of troops is in direct violation of the order of Gov. SHAFFER, which has never been countermanded. The attempt is made in order to maintain the organization of the Nauvoo Legion outside of control of the Governor of the Territory. Mr. WELLS is a Lieutenant-General of this Legion, but pretends to order out the troops as Lieutenant-General of the militia. H. B. CLAWSON, who signs the order as Adjutant-General, is not recognized by the Government. He dates his order from the Adjutant General's office of Utah Territory. Gov. SHAFFER appointed Col. JOHNS Adjutant-General, and he alone can execute the duties of the office. It is generally believed the Mormons will not attempt to carry out their scheme in face of the proclamation. If they do, the laws will be enforced and trouble may ensue. The Mormon Press furiously assault Gov. WOODS for representing to the President that they were engaged with the California-Nevada ring in attempting to remove the Judiciary and other officials standing between them and the lines. They profess to be tolerably well satisfied with the Judges, though they are eternally abusing and villifying them. There is very general satisfaction at the stand taken by President GRANT concerning the Judiciary. Their removal just now, on the demands of a corrupt and unscrupulous ring, would be extremely detrimental to the best interests of the country, and would seriously weaken the authority of the Government. Gen. DE TROBRIAND has relieved Gen. MORROW as commander of Camp Douglass.

Barometer corrected for elevation and temperature.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, July 1—1 A. M.—The barometer has fallen since Thursday evening at the Rocky Mountain stations, and still more in the north-west, where an area of low pressure at present exists. The barometer has risen on the Atlantic coast, and the highest pressure is centered in Delaware. The temperature is very generally stationary or lower than on Thursday night. Easterly winds have been generally experienced from New-Jersey southward and on the lower lakes, fresh southerly winds on the upper lakes and light winds on the Gulf. No reports have been received from Florida, but rain has fallen in portions of Georgia and Alabama, followed at present by clearing-up weather. Clear weather has prevailed in the Middle and Eastern States, followed this evening by cloudy and threatening weather, with light rains, which has spread from Minnesota over Lake Superior and northern Michigan.

PROBABILITIES.

It is probable that the barometer will fall on Saturday, from Virginia to Illinois and northward, with cloudy weather. Fresh and brisk winds will probably be experienced on the upper lakes, and easterly winds continue on the Atlantic coast. Light winds are probable for the Gulf States.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Miss Catharine E. Beecher Writes Another Letter in Opposition.

To the Editor of the Hartford Courant:

Permit me to present a few considerations in opposition to the claims urged on our Legislature in favor of woman suffrage.

Neither man nor woman has a right to anything contrary to the best good of society. If this requires a division of responsibilities, so that woman take charge of the family state, and man of all outside affairs, each aiding the other by counsel and sympathy, then woman should adhere to this division, and she has no right to change it. The simple question is, which is best for society?

The interpretation of our Constitution and its amendments all turn on the meaning of the terms people and citizens. In their widest sense these terms include not only men, but women and children. In the use of the terms in our Constitution, they do not have this broad meaning, for the children are shut out, and all men under twenty-one, and several other classes of men. They include only those people and those citizens who have certain qualifications which the best good of society requires, and every community is to be the judge as to who shall or shall not vote, by settling what is best for all concerned. If the best good of society requires women to be law-makers, judges and jurics, she has a right to these offices; if it does not, she has no right to them. It is probable that the best good of society would be promoted by having women who pay taxes also vote, for this would increase the proportion of intelligent voters, and also take away the most plausible argument for universal woman suffrage.

All will concede that laws should be framed so that woman's usefulness and happiness shall be treated as equal in value to man's. But this does not settle the question as to whether the laws be made by fathers, husbands and brothers, or by women. The majority of women believe that it is for their best good that the responsibility of civil government be borne by men and not by women, and that it will be an act of injustice and oppression to oblige conscientious women to take these responsibilities, as they must do if universal woman suffrage is established by law.

In behalf of the multitudes of women whose voices are not heard, I entreat that no such duties shall be forced on us, until we are better prepared to discharge all that belongs to woman as the prime minister of the family state and the chief educator of our race.

CATHARINE E. BEECHER.

The Brazilian Saratoga—Aid for Buenos Ayres—An Able Disquisition on the Yellow Fever—Advice to New-York—The Emancipation Bill and its Prospects of Success—The Emperor's Visit to the United States.

From Our Own Correspondent.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sunday, May 28, 1871.

The excessive heat of Rio de Janeiro during the solstice renders an occasional retreat to the mountains which surround us on all sides, absolutely necessary, even to the acclimated. The most noted retreats are Novo Friborgo, Petropolis, Constantia, Tijuca and Teresopolis. The altitude of these pretty little mountain resorts varies from two to four thousand feet above the sea, and the visitor can there revel in a cool, bracing atmosphere, and the genial temperature of a temperate climate almost in the very heart of the tropics. At Tijuca is centered a perfect maze of mountain roads, each meandering through a region of bewildering beauty, some encircling the lofty mountains almost to their very summits, others terminating at lovely little lakes, and others winding around a charming fazenda or plantation walled in by the surrounding mountain spurs. From Tijuca the view is truly beautiful. From its leafy plateau the eye wanders far away down among the deep defiles and mountain gorges, embracing in the vista grande the City of Rio de Janeiro, its bay and suburbs, and the blue zone of mountains which encircle the Northern horizon. The picture is one of constant diversity; sometimes it exhibits a perfect flood of solar radiance, and cloud and mountain and shimmering sheet of water blaze with the brightest chromatic splendor; and again you see only the lowering storm as it rolls in from the broad Atlantic across the tops of the loftiest summits, and relieving itself in heavy peals of thunder and copious showers of rain. From a region such as your correspondent has attempted to describe, all Rio, or rather all of the better classes, have just returned, and the handsomest capital on the South Atlantic coast again blooms with all the loveliest of the dark-eyed Brazilian beauties. These languishing belles, whose only care one would think was themselves, are now engaged in a noble work, and one which they are prosecuting with an energy you would hardly believe them possible of possessing. Headed by the kind-hearted Duchess DE CAXIAS, the ladies of Rio are doing much to relieve the sufferings of the fever-stricken inhabitants of Buenos Ayres. They have but recently sent to the capital of the Argentine Republic by a Government transport tendered them by the Minister of Marine a large number of experienced physicians, ample materiel for establishing a large hospital, besides over two hundred thousand milreis. The exertions of the Baroness DE MAUA, the wife of the celebrated Brazilian banker, have been especially successful in aiding the collection of the above princely amount. The latest dates from the Rio de la Plata represent the fever as gradually abating at Buenos Ayres, though there were still a large number dying daily. Business, both governmental and mercantile, had been resumed, but the resumption was merely nominal. In Rio during the Summer which we have just passed, the sun has seemed to have blazed down upon us with more than the usual intensity of equatorial fervor. Yet, notwithstanding the excessive heat and the filthy condition in which the lower portions of the city are to be found, we have escaped the frightful scourge which has dealt such havoc among the inhabitants of our sister of the Argentine Confederation. The yellow fever for the past twenty years has been the subject of very serious study by the most learned medical professors throughout the Empire of Brazil, and its ravages of late years upon the South Atlantic coast, and particularly in the City of Rio de Janeiro, have given these gentlemen rare facilities for the prosecution of their researches into the mysteries of the fatal malady. One of the most eminent physicians of Rio de Janeiro, Dom MARQUEZ DE CARVALHO, in reviewing the epidemic in Buenos Ayres, gives a very interesting statement in regard to its origin, the causes which induced its assuming an epidemic form, and concludes with specifying the proper sanitary precautions, which large practical experience has proved to be the most effectual in averting the plague. I give in substance the remarks of the learned doctor of medicine, and trust that it will meet the eye, and be of benefit to some of the members of your Metropolitan Board of Health. Dom MARQUEZ DE CARVALHO says that for three and a half centuries the City of Buenos Ayres enjoyed the highest reputation for salubrity, until of late years, and in the great heat of Summer, cholera morbus and the fatal fiebre amarilla, or yellow fever, began to make its appearance. These few cases were sent as a warning to the citizens to take proper precautions and adopt proper measures against the impending danger. Contemporary history proves that yellow fever was imported into Brazil toward the end of the year 1849 by a ship which sailed from New-Orleans for California, and which on the voyage touched at Bahia and landed some passengers attacked with the dreaded disease. The fever at once spread in Bahia, and was thence brought down to Rio de Janeiro in the early part of January, 1850. Twenty years after the same thing has happened to Buenos Ayres. There can be no doubt that the fever must have been carried to Buenos Ayres by the tide of emigration which flows to that country, and imported at a time when the elements which favor epidemics were ripe. The health and vigor of the inhabitants of Buenos Ayres favored in a most extraordinary manner the development of yellow fever. In Rio de Janeiro, during the prevalence of the fever in 1850, the disease invariably attacked the strongest and most vigorous constitutions, and especially foreigners and persons who were not acclimatized. It is essential to bear in mind that the putrid gases of Buenos Ayres and the filthy condition of that city greatly aggravated the imported plague and soon caused it to become an epidemic. It was actually imported in the lungs, the stomach, the intestines, in short, all the organs of the bodies of emigrant travelers who had been attacked by the disease. These produced the outbreak which has almost destroyed the most flourishing, most beautiful city of the Rio de la Plata.

Dom MARQUEZ DE CARVALHO recommends as the most effectual hygienic measures, the planting of trees in every street in the city, and gardens in every public square; the thorough disinfection of all hospitals, markets, shambles, lazzarettoes, and also private houses, by burning lime; the covering of floors with lime, to a thickness of at least two centimetres. The carpets of private houses, he urges, should be removed and the floors washed twice a week; pastiles should be burnt in the rooms and camphor spread in those that are the least damp; ashes or lime should be spread on all vasura deposits before they are removed; charcoal placed in all water that is drank, and all the hydrants should be opened for at least an hour daily and the water allowed to flow and carry away the impurities. By adopting these precautions, particularly the cleansing of the streets and the free use of disinfectants, the talented Brazilian physician asserts that the pest may be successfully counteracted. This advice, coming, as it does, from an eminent physician, a gentleman who has carefully studied the subject for years, and who, moreover, has had rare practical experience in his profession in treating the malady in question, ought to be a valuable lesson to the municipal authorities of not alone New-Orleans, Norfolk, and others of your Southern cities not over clean, but to New-York itself, whose proverbial unclean condition recalls to the mind a more repulsive picture than the disgusting spectacle usually witnessed in the filthiest purlieus of a Turkish town.

The all-absorbing topic of conversation here is the Emancipation bill recently introduced in the Brazilian Chambers by the Conservative Party, who have heretofore bitterly opposed the humane measure. A singular bouleversement seems to have taken place in the principles of the two great political organizations of the Empire, and the Liberals, who have for so long strenuously advocated the project, now range themselves on the side of the Opposition, and are as loud in their denunciations as they formerly were in their encomiums upon its merits. The bill is the pet project of the Emperor, is universally popular, and will undoubtedly become a law—probably before this reaches you. It is very ably advocated in the Senate by Visconde DE ITABORAHY, the able leader of the Administration Party, or Conservatives. The Visconde has, however, no mean antagonist in the Senate in Senhor ZACHARIA, from Bahia, the acknowledged head of the Liberals, and without doubt one of the most astute men in Brazil. The Senator from Bahia has been at different periods an advocate of every party measure of every political party in Brazil, and the very bill which he is now so zealously laboring to defeat received only a few years ago its warmest support from its present most relentless opponent. In the House of Deputies the Conservatives have a very large majority, and consequently no fears are entertained in that quarter of its defeat. The Emperor and Empress left us a few days ago for Europe. His Majesty had long contemplated the journey, but as much as he desired to travel he would have postponed his visit until the coming year had not the ill-health of the Empress THERESA compelled her to leave this enervating climate. Dom PEDRO, had he deferred his tour until next year, intended embracing the United States within its limit, and he would have even visited North America during his present absence, had it not been curtailed by the importance of the grave political changes which are about being consummated in Brazil, and which require his presence in Rio de Janeiro early in October.

Boston will close its public bath-houses on the Fourth of July. What is liberty worth there, after this?

Georgia people are wondering at a man who recently made a costly present to a church, and the next day went into bankruptcy.

President G. WILSON MCPHAIL, D. D., of Davidson College, N. C., died on Wednesday morning.

Mr. ADAM BRUHL, an old French soldier, who was with NAPOLEON in his Russian campaign, celebrated his golden wedding in Milwaukee on Monday.

A race between the driver of the first carriage and him of the hearse, sadly spoiled the solemnity of a funeral procession in Warren County, a day or two ago.

Hon. DANIEL VOORHEES has abandoned his intention to stump Kentucky in the interests of the old-time Democrats, in consequence of the severe illness of his sister.

The Pittsburg (Penn.) Gazette sees that the current of public opinion in all sections is setting in favor of President GRANT's renomination.

There is a house in Tolland County, Connecticut, on the walls of which still remains paper which has been there since 1787, when the house was built.

A hotel-keeper in the Schuylkill Valley has posted in his bar-room a placard: "Young Men and Boys are Forbidden to Occupy these Seats. They will find their way here too soon for their own good."

The Boston Transcript propounds this: "If a railway train of cars pass a given point in ten seconds, how long will two trains of the same length, moving at the same rate, in opposite directions, be in passing each other."

A citizen of Haverhill, Mass., has informed the public that, "under unforeseen circumstances," he is compelled to resign the office of special police, and that he hopes to receive another appointment when he can serve.

Two old ladies dined partly on what they supposed to be greens, which they had gathered in their garden in Toledo, Ohio, on Saturday. In a few hours one was a corpse; the other was seriously ill, but antidotes saved her life.

A Chinaman, in charge of a California policeman, and handcuffed, leaped headforemost from a car window while the train was going twenty miles an hour. He picked himself up and walked off, apparently unhurt, and when the cars were backed down and the guardian wished to go in pursuit of him, all traces of him had been lost.

It has been shown that C. G. JACOBS, the man who told the Police of Chicago that he killed a rival in Texas, is suffering from a strange hallucination. His brother says that he has told the same story two or three times in other places, and that he must be "cracked."

A party of mounted men in disguise took a white man named PAGET from his house in Walterboro, S. C., recently, and gave him a severe beating. It is alleged that he had swindled several persons, falsely pretending to be a tax-collector.

BENJAMIN ADAMS, a seaman on the American ship Daniel Marcy, now at San Francisco, has entered a complaint against the mates of that vessel of uncalled-for and intolerable brutality toward him during the voyage. He asks for $5,000 damages.

The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser & Mail mentions as possible or probable candidates for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, Salmon P. Chase, Gen. Hancock, Thomas A. Hendricks, Gov. Hoffman, Gen. McClellan, A. G. Thurman, Charles Francis Adams, Gov. English and F. P. Blair.

Hon. JOHN S. GOLLADAY, of Kentucky, has written a letter criticising very severely Judge PRYOR for admitting negro testimony, and saying that if they are to submit to the Fourteenth Amendment, it is idle to complain of the Bayonet bill and the Kuklux bill, of which the amendment is the legitimate sire.

Investigation has shown that the charge which a man named DEVOE made against ISAAC G. LANSING, a young farmer in Saratoga County, that the latter hired him to murder his wife, was a cruel, baseless, and, so far as can be ascertained, causeless slander. Mr. LANSING has always lived happily with his wife since their marriage, and it is difficult to imagine what DEVOE's object could be in concocting such a story about him.

The San Francisco Alta is amused by the astonishing performances of the great political acrobat, Gov. HAIGHT. It says: "He has now mounted on his improvised nag of anti-subsidy, and has started off in full career. His saddle-bags are distended with subsidies and in his right hand he swings aloft the secret service fund. He drafted a Sunday law, and got elected the first time by pledging himself to sign a bill for its repeal. He approved seventeen subsidy bills, and now claims re-election on the ground that he is opposed to subsidies."

JOHN H. COGHLAN, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Third District of California, is a young man, heretofore not much known to the public, but of great force of character and strong intelligence. The Sacramento Union says that he belongs to the class of self-made men, and has worked his way from humble life to an honorable position at the Bar in one of the foremost counties of his district, that he is very popular where known, has the high political art of making new friends with much facility, is a hard worker, and will make as good a canvass as any man in the district.

Of Lieut. HUGH W. MCKEE, who was killed in the attack on the Coreans, the Erie (Penn.) Dispatch says: "This brave officer was for some time attached to the United States steamer Michigan, on duty at this port and on the lakes. Few officers who have served upon the Michigan are remembered with more kindly regard than Lieut. MCKEE. He was genial, generous, companionable, a universal favorite in society and in the naval service. He entered the service from Kentucky in 1861, as a cadet at the Naval Academy, and had been off duty but seven months during his whole time of service. He was ordered from the Michigan to the Colorado in December, 1869."

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Another Letter to a Southerner—He Urges that Southern Self-Control is a Prime Requisite.

Mr. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, of Massachusetts, has written the following letter to an Arkansas editor who had expressed to him his apprehension that the Republic is fast going to destruction:

QUINCY, Mass., June 5, 1871.

DEAR SIR: I cannot pass over, silently, a letter which gratifies me as much as yours, which I received today; and yet, I feel shy of speaking to you or any citizen of the "subject States." I dislike to earn the retort, "Oh, it is very easy to preach; but, suffer as we have and then tell us how you feel, and we will listen." I do try to take it home to myself; and I do not doubt that, in similar circumstances, I should be today an "unrepentant rebel"—sore, angry, beaten and defiant. And, with me, it would doubtless have been as it has been with you, that "the tender mercies of reconstruction had been harder to bear than all the horrors of invasive war." I should have been galled by misgovernment, robbed by imported knavery of the pittance which the war had spared, exasperated by willful and persistent misrepresentation, and cruelly condemned to hopeless impotence for the imputed guilt of cowardly crimes I abhorred. I should have been condemned, too, to hold my personal liberty at the nod of a mercenary carpet-bagger or the whim of a military satrap. I say that I fear I should have been an "irreconcilable." In such a case I think I should be sulky, but I know I should be silly if I yielded to the feeling, for whence must my relief come if my last estate is not to become worse than the first? Is there a man outside an asylum who thinks that by such a course the "lost cause" can be regained? By whom, then? If by the North, believe me that the experiment of secession has satisfied us that no cause is worth a civil war. That war has confirmed, beyond a shadow of a turning, the destiny which decreed that there shall be but one confederated people of the North American Union. No. Rebellious I might be; but weak enough to await the resurrection of secession I do not think I could be. You and I and your friends and neighbors and mine are of one blood; we were once "fellow-citizens;" and the old-time kindness must linger yet in spots. Our fathers were "brethren," and that ought to count for something. The whole political problem of the future turns upon the answer to the question, "Shall we live together as friends or enemies?" Now, the whole internal policy of the present Administration says war. Reconstruction meant war; and the Kuklux bill declared war. This Union is now held together by force. Certainly, if this is to be permanent, there would have been better to have parted at first. If the struggle to cast out slavery overthrew the Constitution, what chance is there for a "free" Government, if the North is to rule the South? South Carolina is today the most shameless parody on republican institutions since republican Rome betrode all the nations of the ancient world, put the sword to their throats, stripped them bare, and then lacked words to laud the loveliness of liberty. You cannot be subject, and we be long free. The untrammeled exercise of local self-government by the people of the States is the salt which preserves our whole system. Take that away and our frame of polity will rapidly rot into despotism. Therefore it is, that, not as a partisan, but wholly as a fellow-citizen, I trust that all the good citizens of the seceded States will frankly and honestly accept the revolutionary changes which have been forced upon the Constitution, and with them, cheerfully adopt the new relations of amity and political and civil equality toward the emancipated class which these changes involve. And therefore I am glad when I see the noble spirit of your letter pervading the Southern people as it does, despite the malignity of a partisan Press; while the sterling sense of Mr. VALLANDIGHAM has reformed the Northern Democracy. And it matters not what man may be chosen to lead us, so long as his heart is large enough to hold his whole country; his soul brave enough to embrace a Confederate as a brother, and his platform wide enough for every American citizen to stand upon. To compass this end something of sacrifice is required of us all; much of self-control is demanded of the South. You and all I hear assure me that the attempt will be made; and if made honestly and in earnest, it cannot fail. Again thanking you for your letter, I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. Q. ADAMS.

THE DISPUTED PRIZE.

Disagreement Among the Yachtmen—The Columbia, Probably, to Get the Union Cup—Mr. Osgood to Resign—A Match in Prospect Between the Rival Yachts.

One of the principal topics of conversation among our amateur tars, besides the all-absorbing Cape May regatta and the ocean race for the Wallack cup, is the disputed prize between the Madeleine and Columbia in the recent regatta of the Brooklyn Club for the Club Union Cup. As is already known, the prize has been awarded to the Madeleine by the judges on the time supposed to have been taken by the time-keeper at the home stake-boat, which, with the time allowance in favor of the Madeleine, places the Columbia three seconds behind her adversary, although in reality the latter yacht, according to the judges' own account, passed the stake-boat one minute and twenty seconds before her rival. Mr. OSGOOD, the owner of the Columbia, and Rear Commodore of the New-York Yacht Club, deeply feeling the injustice done him, addressed a letter to the Regatta Committee and judges of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, which was published in the TIMES a few days since. It will be remembered that this was only an informal note, to the effect that a serious discrepancy existed in the time as given to Commodore OSGOOD's sailing master by the time-keeper of the home stake-boat, and the time as handed the judges in the evening at the Brooklyn Yacht Club-rooms by the same individual. The time given Commodore OSGOOD by the time-keeper gives the race to his vessel by one minute and ten seconds. The time said to have been altered is given to the judges awarding the prize to the Commodore VOORHIS' yacht by three seconds, after deducting two minutes and three seconds time allowance. A meeting of the judges will be called, when the formal protest of Commodore OSGOOD will be received and their previous decision reviewed. It is currently reported, and the TIMES has excellent authority for the statement, that an effort will be made to induce the owner of the Columbia to settle the dispute by a match with the Madeleine for a race twenty miles to windward and return, with an eight-knot breeze as a stipulation. It is hardly necessary to say that Commodore OSGOOD will not for a moment entertain the proposition, as assured that the boys are ready and anxious, after he obtains the "Union prize" from the hands of the Brooklyn Club, and which he considers he has fairly won, to race the Madeleine under the rules and regulations of the New-York Yacht Club, of which Commodore VOORHIS is a member, for any distance or any amount. An attaché of the TIMES yesterday called upon Mr. A. ONDERDONK, one of the judges in the recent race, and was informed by that gentleman that he felt very much annoyed and deeply chagrined that any misunderstanding should have occurred to mar the pleasure all had appeared to have enjoyed. Mr. SLOTE acknowledged that he had arrived at the conclusion that the figures had been tampered with and considered that the prize, under those circumstances, had been unjustly awarded to the Madeleine. Both Messrs. SLOTE and M. M. VAN DYKE have expressed their regret at their decision, and remarked that it was particularly unfortunate that the alleged victory should have fallen upon the yacht of the Commodore of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, as the inference of many, not knowing that estimable gentleman, would naturally pronounce him as having been accessory to the deception said to have been practiced. Commodore VOORHIS has been unwell since the day of the regatta, which will, is a measure, account for his silence on the subject in dispute.

Yachting Notes.

The beautiful schooner yacht Alice, owned by Mr. GEORGE W. KIDD has been leased for the Summer to Mr. JOHN B. NORRIS. Mr. KIDD's reason for relinquishing the sports on the wave is said to be his pressing business engagements. The action of the owner of the Alice has been very severely commented upon, many having asserted that Mr. KIDD's known wealth should have prevented him from letting a vessel of the New-York Yacht Club, notwithstanding she was Mr. KIDD's own property. There is, however, a clause in the by-laws of the New-York Yacht Club which justifies Mr. KIDD's conduct. Chapter 5 says that any yacht which may be let or hired, unless to a member of at least one year's standing, shall be debarred all rights and privileges of the Club during the time in which she may be let or hired; and the owner of any yacht infringing the rule shall be liable to expulsion. Mr. JOHN B. NORRIS joined the membership of the New-York Yacht Club on the 21st of May, 1868.

Mr. GEORGE A. OSGOOD's schooner yacht Fleetwing will sail from New-York this evening on a cruise up the Sound, to Greenwich, Conn. Her party consists of Mr. GEORGE A. OSGOOD, Mr. MOSES MITCHELL, Mr. THOMAS F. BANKER, and several invited guests. The yacht will anchor on the Fourth of July opposite the American Club-house, where her party will enjoy the hospitalities of the Tigers.

Plan to Aid the Cuban Exiles.

The Society League of the Daughters of Cuba met at No. 309 Fifth-avenue, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of adopting measures toward helping the distressed Cuban exiles in this country. There are 3,000 or 4,000 members of exiled Cuban families in this City and vicinity, and during last Winter many of these underwent a great deal of suffering. The Society League gave them considerable assistance. Through the exertions of the Secretary of the League, Mrs. EMELIA C. DE VILLAVERDE, the Society expects to be able to furnish free transportation to some port in MEXICO or South America, to all Cuban families that may wish to emigrate. Those willing to take advantage of this offer, are requested to apply personally or in writing to the Secretary of the League, at Mott Haven, stating the members of which their families are composed, and the port they wish to go to, as this point is to be decided by the emigrants themselves.

The League is desirous of thanking the kind persons who have shown their sympathy for the destitute Cuban refugees, and it requests the papers of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Charleston, and New-Orleans to publish its offer.

KINGS COUNTY TAXES.

Report of the Board of Estimate—Total Amount About $6,000,000.

The Board of Estimate of Kings County met yesterday afternoon in the City Hall, Brooklyn, and agreed upon the report on the taxes to be levied for 1872. The report will be submitted to the joint Board today. After reciting several reasons why the current expenses of the county should be reduced, the report states that the amount required to be raised this year for various purposes, exclusive of city revenue and license fees handed over by the late Metropolitan Commission, ($147,000,) is $3,508,077 16, as against $4,218,488 33 raised last year.

The estimates of the Water Department have been reduced to $190,000, as against $314,000 last year. This is a reduction of $124,000. As against this, the water rates have been increased during the present year. The amount which the increase will realize cannot yet be accurately determined. An increase of twenty-five per cent., as claimed by the Board, would amount to over $125,000 per annum. At all events, no deficiency is asked for this year.

The expenditure of the Fire Department was last year $700,000. The cost of maintaining the Unsafe Building Department, provided for elsewhere, last year, is now added to it. ($10,000.) The increase of the pay of firemen—from $700 to $800 per annum, by an act of the last Legislature—requires an additional outlay of over $10,000. The amount asked through the estimate originally presented by this Department for this year was $876,489, an increase of over $116,000. The appropriation fixed by the Board and herewith submitted is $924,366—an increase of $64,985—or, deducting the two items above referred to—transfer of cost of Unsafe Building Department, and increase of salaries by act of the Legislature—an increase of about $44,000. The Board of Education has on hand $30,000; it has an offer of $21,000 for property it desires to sell; we authorize an appropriation of $71,000 for building purposes—a sum sufficient to build the three schools at the places and at the cost named. The Board will still have about $30,000 worth of property undisposed of, and which it is authorized to sell. This reduces the appropriation of the Board of Education to $671,000 as against $750,000 last year.

The Park Commissioners asked for $100,000, the amount raised last year, for the maintenance of the public parks of the city. The Board of Estimate have decided that the public parks shall be maintained at an annual expenditure of $75,000 for the present. In view of the fact that a considerable portion of Prospect Park is still unimproved, this amount, we believe, to be as much as the tax-payers feel justified in spending for this purpose.

On motion it was determined to invest $3,851, to liquidate certain claims against the city for the improvement of Fourth-avenue. The total amount to be raised is about $6,000,000, which is a little over $15 per capita.

Public School Exhibitions.

The graduating exercises of the Class of 1871, at Grammar School No. 33, on West Twenty-eighth-street, was held yesterday afternoon, at the hall in the school building. The attendance was very large, and the exercises were of a very interesting character, consisting of recitations, compositions and original essays. At the conclusion of the entertainment prize-medals for superior scholarship were given to the following young ladies: First, gold, ANTOINETTE C. STALLMAN; second, silver, IDA E. POND and SARAH A. BENNETT. Diplomas were then conferred on each of the members of the Graduating Class, whose names were, Sarah A. Bennett, Mary E. Coughlan, Mary E. Fallon, Charlotte Holsderber, Kate McArthur, Matilda May, Ida E. Pond, May E. Crommelin, Jemima Cani, Anna Forsyth, Mary Macfarlane, Anna McHugh, Kate A. Meredith, Antoinette C. Stallman.

Addresses were delivered by Hon. JAMES W. GERARD, JOHN H. ANTHON, Hon. NELSON WATERBURY and ERASTUS LITTLEFIELD. Among the gentlemen present were PETER TRAINER, JAMES KELLY, JOHN HOLZDERBER and Dr. HOWE.

The semi-annual distribution of prizes at Grammar School No. 12, Primary Department, on Madison-street, took place yesterday afternoon. The chief feature of the exercises consisted of the singing, which, considering the age of the pupils, was of exceptional excellence, and the calisthenic practice, a system lately introduced into the school, which, on account of its healthfulness, is meeting with great favor. Addresses were made by JOHN J. DELANCEY, HENRY TICE and THOMAS SHIELDS, referring to the great success that was attending the teachings of the school, which, under the management of the present Principal, Miss CARRIE V. FRANKLIN, has been largely augmented in numbers. The Callery gold medals, for general excellence, were given to MARY E. WARD and JAS. J. GALLAGER.

Public exercises of an interesting character will be given by the pupils of "No. 26" this morning, at 10 o'clock, in their beautiful school building, when the graduated will receive their diplomas, and nearly 100 semi-annual certificates will be distributed. The famous gymnastic class will, by request, perform, and choruses, solos and duets will be rendered by the choir, under the direction of the Vice-Principal, Mr. CHAS. F. OLNEY. We can promise our friends a happy time at this informal entertainment.

The twenty-third anniversary of Public School No. 18, in Degraw-street, Brooklyn, took place yesterday. The school-room was profusely decorated for the occasion, and the floral display was magnificent. The flowers were the gift of Mrs. DEMAS BARNES. Mr. READ, the Principal, distributed diplomas to the four graduates, and about eighty pupils received semi-annual certificates. Hon. DEMAS BARNES, Chairman of the School Committee, delivered a very complimentary address.

Taxes on Scrip Dividends.

OFFICE OF THE ATLANTIC MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY, NEW-YORK, Friday, June 30, 1871.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I beg to inclose some correspondence which will explain an error in the article which appeared in this morning's issue of your paper, on the subject of taxes on scrip dividends, in naming this Company as a delinquent.

J. D. JONES, President.

OFFICE OF THE ATLANTIC MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY, NEW-YORK, June 30, 1871.

Spencer Kirby, Esq., Assessor, &c., New-York:

DEAR SIR: I have noticed an article in the NEW-YORK TIMES of this morning on the subject of non-payment of taxes on dividend by insurance companies, giving the names of certain companies that have not paid such tax. In the list the name of this Company appears.

I had supposed the Company had paid the tax on scrip dividends up to the end of 1869.

I will be obliged if you will inform me whether I am correct or not.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,
(Signed,) J. D. JONES, President.

UNITED STATES INTERNAL REVENUE, ASSESSOR'S OFFICE, THIRTY-SECOND DISTRICT OF NEW-YORK, NEW-YORK, June 30, 1871.

John D. Jones, Esq., President Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company:

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your communication of this date, on the subject of the returns, assessments and payments of taxes upon scrip dividends by your Company, and I affirm with pleasure your supposition that all such taxes up to and including 1869, were regularly assessed, and have been paid.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed,) SPENCER KIRBY, Assessor.

Crumbs of the Saengerfest.

As most of the visiting vocal organizations left the City for their homes on Thursday, the return of flags and banners at head-quarters by the General Fest Committee, which was yesterday's programme, was only a small matter, while another occasion of that kind is accompanied by a series of parting ceremonies and affecting scenes. These, however, were passed through at the head-quarters of the different organizations, where the visitors were quartered during their sojourn in this City. These parting ceremonies were mostly attended by presentations and counter presentations. Thus the Young Maennerchor of Baltimore was presented by its host, the Melomanen Society, with a valuable silver goblet. The ladies of the Concordia Maennerchor, of this City, presented the guests of this Society, the Concordia Gesang Verein, of Philadelphia, also with a silver goblet. The ladies of the Schiller Bund presented the guests of this Society, at its head-quarters in Clinton-street, with laurel wreaths. The Euphonia gave a commers at Dramatic Hall, in Houston-street, in honor of the Arion, of Baltimore, and of the Liederkranz, of Williamsburg. The "prize crowned" society, Germania Maennerchor, of Baltimore, which was the recipient of the first prize, gave, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, a banquet to its host, the Saengerrunde, in this City. The Philadelphia societies left this City in a rather disaffected mood, partly on account of disappointment about the prize distribution, they being impressed with the idea that the second prize, awarded to the Washington Choral Society, ought to have been given to one of the Philadelphia societies.

It is stated that this last Saengerfest has resulted in a deficit of nearly $3,000, which has to be covered by the New-York societies. The amount will be raised without difficulty by assessment and subscription. At the last general Saengerfest in this City, six years ago, which was the ninth, a surplus nearly equal to the present deficit was realized. The second day picnic at Jones' Wood on Thursday was attended by about 5,000 persons.

THE ERIE STRUGGLE.

Close of the Argument on the Motion to Compel Gould to Surrender the Stock of Heath and Raphael—Further Issue of Stock by the Erie Railroad Company.

The argument on the motion of HEATH and RAPHAEL, the English stockholders of the Erie Railway Company, to compel JAY GOULD to surrender 30,000 shares of Erie Railroad stock which it is alleged were abstracted from the receivership of the Court, and also to prevent the registration of 30,000 shares of stock issued by GOULD, on the basis of the canceled certificates of HEATH and RAPHAEL, was concluded yesterday before Judge BLATCHFORD, in the United States Circuit Court.

Mr. WM. M. EVARTS, who commenced his argument in favor of the English shareholders, the previous evening, continued it. The argument, he advanced in the course of his address are substantially contained in the following synopsis of his printed brief which he submitted to the Court.

He contended that the property in the possession of the receiver of a Court of Equity was legally in the possession of the Court itself, and that it was a contempt of Court for any one, without the express permission of the Court, to interfere with such property, either by taking it out of the possession of the receiver, or by doing anything to impair its value, whether such interference be in virtue of legal proceedings of some other Court, or officer, or under paramount right or title of any kind, and that it was intrinsically wrongful. Any one so interfering with such property in the hands of the Court would be required to restore the property abstracted, and failing, to be punished by attachment for disobedience. There were no technical obstructions upon the power of the Court to compel the making good of obstructions, or of injuries to property thus under its control, and the fact that the wrong-doer, who is made responsible in the summary proceedings, is not a party in the original suit wherein the res has been brought into Court, is wholly immaterial. He illustrated this position of the propositions, stating that these things could never be answered by the adoption of summary proceedings as a mode of redress. Referring to the question of the registration of stock, he said that the fact that the stock was not registered or registerable with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company did not make good the delivery under the contract, and will not practically sell in the New-York market, as shown by the evidence of Messrs. ROLSTON and E. D. WILLIAMS. GOULD's sale and receipt of the spurious 30,000 shares which he procured to be registered with a certificate by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, appropriating to that purpose by cancellation HEATH and RAPHAEL's original certificates for the genuine 30,000 shares, and falsely representing to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that his really spurious stock had been issued in place of HEATH and RAPHAELS' certificate thus canceled, is shown by his own evidence. The fact that in consequence of the misuse of the original Heath and Raphael certificates the 30,000 shares for which there is now held only a bare certificate in the name of JAMES H. COLEMAN, receiver, cannot be registered with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, but if presented for registration and certification there would appear upon the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company's register as a mere over-issue, is shown by the petition and by the evidence of RALSTON. The suggestion of the respondent that the registration of stock and its certification by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as a condition of marketableness or salableness was merely local regulation in the New-York stock market, and has no operation in Europe, and that therefore HEATH and RAPHAEL's stock, though unsalable in New-York, still retains its value because of its salableness in Europe, is no answer to this application, for New-York is the place where the corporation is established, and is the primary market for the sale of the stock. But it is wholly untrue that the circumstance of the certificates having been made unregisterable with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and therefore unsalable in the New-York market, does not bar their sale in the European market. Stripping the case relating to the missing 30,000 shares of all technical form and developing its real substance, we ascertained beyond doubt these results: HEATH and RAPHAEL had 30,000 genuine shares, duly registered and entitled to be so certified, and salable in the market at their pleasure; GOULD had 30,000 spurious shares, unregistered and incapable of being registered, and wholly unsaleable and valueless; GOULD has so dealt with the documents of title as to extract from HEATH and RAPHAEL's 30,000 shares their registerable quality and render them wholly unsalable; and he has communicated to his own spurious, unsalable and valueless shares the precise registerable and salable quality which he has extracted from HEATH & RAPHAEL's shares, and, having thereby invested his spurious stock with the indicia of genuineness, he has been enabled to and has sold it as genuine to bona-fide holders and received money for it. Thus he has, in substance, appropriated to his own use the entire marketable value of HEATH and RAPHAEL's stock. The specific relief prayed in the petition is the appropriate relief. GOULD having prevented the registration of the 30,000 shares standing in COLEMAN's name, by his misuse of the 30,000 genuine shares belonging to HEATH and RAPHAEL, as the appropriate basis for such registration, should be compelled to replace the abstraction by furnishing an equivalent number of registered genuine shares, such as will suffice to obtain the registration of the 30,000 shares in the name of COLEMAN, to be used for such purpose as specifically prayed for, or if he elects to pay the value in money in lieu of such specific replacement, such value should, as sworn to in the petition, be at the highest price, since HEATH and RAPHAEL have been deprived of their property in consequence of his abstraction. The reservation of all rights against other parties, in case of failure to obtain ultimate satisfaction from GOULD, is clearly proper. The 30,000 new shares issued and sold by GOULD, which he procured to be registered and certified by the fraudulent misuse of the Heath and Raphael certificates belonging to the receivership, were an utterly spurious and fraudulent issue. This new stock, issued on the pretended basis of convertible bonds, was wholly illegal and void. It never was and never can be entitled to any place in the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company's register of Erie Railway stock, or upon any authenticated register of the stock of that Company, and the order on this petition should provide, as prayed for, that there shall be no enlargement of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company's registry by adding thereto that spurious 30,000 shares; or, at all events, that in executing the replacement by furnishing 30,000 genuine shares, registered with and certified by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, GOULD shall not be permitted to furnish as such genuine and registered stock, any based upon the addition to the registry of such spurious 30,000 shares. No money was ever actually borrowed on these bonds, and there never was any real issue of them. The only pretended basis for issuing the bonds was an order of the Executive Committee, composed of GOULD, FISK and LANE, and the only alleged ownership of them by any one, up to and at the time of their pretended conversion into stock, was by GOULD himself, who claims that he, the President of the Company, made a bargain with FISK and LANE, his colleagues in the Executive Committee, that he (GOULD) should buy the bonds from the Company, and should allow for them the value of the stock into which they were to be converted. Counsel read from the evidences of Justice D. WHITE, a director of the Company, and G. P. MORRISON, the auditor and general book-keeper of the Company, showing that they knew nothing of the issue of these bonds until the circumstance was developed in the course of the investigation, and continued to say: GOULD admits that there was no communication to the Board of Directors of the issuing of these bonds or this stock, nor can the name of any individual director, other than FISK and LANE, to whom such communication was made until after the making of the order of March 11, for the restoration to HEATH and RAPHAEL of their stock. If the new 30,000 shares were illegal and void when they were issued, in December and January, the resolution of the Board of Directors, passed in April, 1871, cannot make them valid. 1. The illegality was inherent, from causes beyond the power of the directors to cure. The corporation had no authority, after the exhaustion of its power, to make direct issues of stock; to manufacture stock by the process of sham convertible bonds, made for the mere purpose of being turned into stock. 2. By the express terms of the resolution, the stock was not to be validated or recognized, unless it formed part of the legal capital on the day in March mentioned in the resolution—being the day on which the injunction against further issue of stock was granted, and the reason for this caution on the part of the directors is evident. Under all these circumstances the illegality and fraud of the issue of the new 30,000 shares is too plain for dispute.

As Mr. EVARTS concluded his argument, Mr. SWAN, attorney for HEATH and RAPHAEL, entered Court and stated that JAY GOULD had notified the Stock Exchange that after thirty days he would increase the capital stock of the Erie Company by 30,000 additional shares. The fact was communicated to the Court by Mr. EVARTS. Judge BLATCHFORD directed Mr. EVARTS to make affidavit to that effect, to be filed with the Clerk of the Court, and he would then take action in the premises.

The papers in the case were then submitted to the Court, and decision was reserved.

SUPREME COURT—GENERA

POLICE SHORTCOMINGS.

A Large Calendar—A Brutal Policeman—The Docherty Case in a New Form—Not Asleep, but Meditating.

A crowded Court-room greeted Commissioner MANIERRE when he took his seat, yesterday, and a calendar of forty-eight cases awaited him. Most of these possessed no general interest.

Mrs. HANNAH TANNAM, of No. 18 Lewis-street, who resides in the same house with Patrolman CORNELIUS REGAN, of the Seventh Precinct, complained that the latter, without provocation, threw her down beat and kicked her, and finally dragged her to the Delancey-street Police Station-house, where, on his complaint of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, she was locked up. On the following morning she was discharged. The officer proved by the complainant's own witnesses, and by others, that she was very drunk and disorderly, and was using foul and filthy language.

Patrolman JOHN BYRNE, of the Twentieth Precinct, was complained of by Mrs. MARGARET DAYTON for having pulled the ears of her little boy in so brutal a manner that they bled. Commissioner MANIERRE severely reprimanded the officer and referred the case to the Board.

Patrolman ANTHONY CANNAVAN, of the Eighteenth Precinct, was charged by PATRICK MCENROWE, keeper of an oyster saloon in First-avenue, with having given him a $1 bill in payment for some oysters, and on receiving seventy-five cents change declared that he had handed him a $2 bill, and when the complainant refused to give him and more money, took him to the Station-house. There, rather than be locked up, he gave the officer the amount demanded. The officer swore positively that it was a $2 bill he gave him. He was positive, because he only had one of that denomination.

The case of JOHN DOCHERTY, fireman, attached to Hook and Ladder Company No. 6, was then called up. This case has already been fully given in the TIMES. DOCHERTY testified that while aiding Officer MELLIS, of the Tenth Precinct, to arrest two drunken men who had assaulted him, Officer HORBELT, of the Third District Court, came up and seizing MELLIS' club, struck him (DOCHERTY) on the head with it, and complainant was afterward arrested and locked up. HORBELT testified that he saw MELLIS lying on the pavement and three men around him, one was endeavoring to take away the officer's club, and DOCHERTY twice kicked the officer. He then struck him with the club, and afterward directed some officers who came to witness' assistance to arrest of the party. HORBELT and other officers testified that they had been subpœned to attend the investigation by the Fire Commissioners, but on learning that DOCHERTY had been acquitted in the Court of Special Sessions, the Commissioners dismissed the complaint and their evidence was not taken. Patrolman MELLIS testified that he saw two men fall in Grand-street, and he went to see what was the matter. He found them to be drunk and attempted to arrest them. They resisted and got him down. Seeing DOCHERTY near, he asked him to help him. Instead of doing so, DOCHERTY kicked him, and when HORBELT came up DOCHERTY kicked him again. Patrolman FITZPATRICK testified that DOCHERTY escaped from him while under arrest, and fell three times—once over a pile of stones, cutting his left temple severely. Sergt. ALLEN, several officers, and the doorman of the Eldridge-street Police Station, testified that DOCHERTY was very disorderly in the Station-house, and that he was under the influence of liquor. The further investigation was adjourned to Monday.

Roundsman RODGERS, of the Second Precinct, complained that he found Patrolman THOMAS KEANE asleep, leaning in a doorway, and that he had to shake him to awaken him. The officer denied that he was asleep. It was true that his eyes were closed, and that he did not at once respond when the officer shook him; but this arose from his being engaged in meditation on some affairs of importance at that time. Referred to the Board.

The Saloon Homicide—Death of McCann.

PETER MCCANN, the young cripple, who was shot in the left temple by PETER OZAB, a saloon-keeper at No. 308 Avenue A, on Monday night last, while engaged with his brothers, PATRICK and TIMOTHY, and several other young roughs, in assaulting OZAB with beer-glasses, and smashing the movables in the place, died, yesterday, in Bellevue Hospital. OZAB, the brothers MCCANN, and TIMOTHY MCCARTY, another of the party, who were arrested immediately after the affray, are still held to await the result of an investigation. Coroner SCHIRMER will, today, impanel a jury, and will commence an investigation early in the week.

FRIDAY, June 30—P. M.

Today closes the Fiscal Year 1871, one of the most remarkable in the history of the Foreign Commerce of the country. The Importers never before marketed so large a value of Foreign Goods, and the Treasury never received so large a sum for Customs Duties. We believe we can also say, although our tables are only official for nine months of the year, that the country never marketed abroad so large a value of ordinary Domestic Produce or made available in our Foreign Exchanges so large a sum of the Gold and Silver product of our Pacific States and Territories. An approximate estimate is as follows:

Foreign Goods marketed
Customs received thereon	$492,000,000
Domestic Produce sent abroad	207,800,000
Net outgo of Gold and Silver	412,000,000
	80,000,000

The sales of Gold today were 112½@113@113⅛ ₱ cent, much the same as yesterday; the market firm, but free from speculative excitement. The Public Funds continued firm and scarce, particularly on the 5-20s of 1862 and 1867, especially wanted for Europe.

Exchange on London was reported slightly easier this morning, at 110¼ ₱ cent., but there was no perceptible decline on the actual business for Saturday's steamers. The Mexican Silver, $1,250,000, received a few days since from Vera Cruz, will be transshipped to London to-morrow, and also about $1,250,000 in American Gold. The Treasury paid out today $900,000 on July Interest on the Public Debt, making the total prepayments for the five days of the week, $7,750,000.

Money continues abundant at cheap rates, 3 to 5 ₱ cent. to the Brokers on call loan.

At the Stock Exchange there was a slightly improved speculation in the New-York and Western Roads, prices showing more strength on Lake Shore, Ohio and Mississippi, the North-Wests, &c., while the bearish disposition in the market was less prominent than a few days ago. The break in business by the Fourth of July Holidays will probably leave the general market unsettled until after Wednesday next. After the late Boards this Afternoon the following quotations were made as compared with Thursday night.

The Erie people have renewed their notice of last April to the Stock Exchange, through their Registrars, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, that they must enlarge their Capital three million of dollars, after thirty days' notice. The Registered Capital is now overdrawn 30,000 shares by the robbery of the English Stock of Messrs. HEATH and RAPHAEL, and to make restitution the fraud of fabricating 30,000 shares out of $3,000,000 so-called Convertible Bonds, improvised for the purpose, must needs be legalized, although the transaction appeared so gross in April that GOULD himself withdrew the notice. An evening paper intimates a doubt as to whether the Stock Exchange will now be satisfied with the manner of its renewal, as the Farmers' Trust seems to have been.

It now seems probable that Monday will be very generally observed as a day of rest, by the suspension of business negotiations in wholesale lines. Nearly all the prominent financial and commercial centres, including the Stock, Gold, Cotton, Petroleum and Naval Store Exchanges have resolved to adjourn from Saturday to Wednesday next. The Produce Exchange,—constituting the only exception of moment,—at the meeting held today for the determination of the question, decided not to adjourn. Under the by-laws of the institution the vote of three-fourths of the members present is required to carry the motion to adjourn. The motion failed of adoption today, as the vote stood 256 in favor and 108 against the proposed adjournment. It is not anticipated, however, that there will be anything like even an average attendance at this Exchange, as many of the members will take advantage of the recurrence of the national anniversary to secure a few days of retirement for rest and recreation.

The following emphatic paragraph appears editorially in the Evening Post of this Afternoon on the extraordinary exhibit of the City and County Debt, published in the morning papers:

"We print elsewhere the principal parts of a report upon the finances, the debt, and taxes of the City of New-York, issued by the Society of Political Reform, an organization of patriotic and intelligent citizens, who have undertaken to expose and lead the people to reform corruption and mismanagement in our State and City affairs. This report upon the manner in which the City debt has been increased; upon the extraordinary growth of it in the last twenty-eight months; and the refusal, still more extraordinary and disgraceful, of the Controller and officers concerned in the City Government, to make public the manner in which these millions with which they have burdened the City have been spent, deserves the attentive study of every citizen and tax-payer, and ought to have a powerful effect in arousing public opinion and waking the citizens against a set of men whose audacity and greed increases with every year, and who do not any longer keep up even a show of respect for law, or regard for the public welfare."

The Fifth National Bank announces a Semi-Annual Dividend of Five ₱ cent., payable July 1.

The week's imports of foreign dry goods have been to the specie value of $1,556,894; amount marketed, $1,812,597.

The New-Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroad Company pay, on and after July 1, the coupons upon the bonds of both the Mobile and the Western divisions, free of Government tax.

The Cincinnati Price Current, of June 28, says:

"The weather has been sultry, with a temperature ranging from 76° to 80° during the nights, and 83° to 90° at midday. Taking the entire West and South, it has been showery, and at various places there have been some storms of rain and hail, which have done some damage to crops, but nothing very serious. The advices from the crops continue very favorable indeed, excepting the condition of Spring Wheat in the extreme North-west, say Wisconsin, Minnesota and portions of Iowa. A correspondent, who has been traveling over those sections, says that owing to the drouth which prevailed when the Wheat was in its early growth has cut it short, and that the crop cannot be a full average, as a rule, though he found many districts where there had been seasonable rains, or rather heavy showers, at the important time, and in such places the wheat is good. The Corn crop over all the Western and Southern States is reported to be excellent and growing with unusual rapidity. The number of Hogs in the Western States exceeds that ever known before, so that, with such an abundance of pork as the growing corn crop promises, those who deal in pork are admonished to commence educating their hands to very low prices the coming season."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

M. THIERS' dinner after the review of Longchamps was attended by almost every General and Colonel in and near Paris, and the greatest cordiality prevailed. The French journals resent the criticisms of the North German Gazette on French military expenditures, intimating that they concern France alone. M. GAMBETTA arrived in Paris on Thursday. The sentence of death on M. CREMIEUX will probably be commuted. The work of restoring Paris is progressing. Fully 60,000 masons are engaged in repairing the damaged buildings and erecting new ones. The journals, both of Paris and Versailles, express satisfaction at the success of the review at Longchamps. The Official Journal, commenting on the review, remarks that "we have shown Europe an army 100,000 strong, valorous and ably commanded, which has saved the cause of civilization. We have also called for two milliards of money, and been offered five milliards. The nation evidently recovers."....The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has directed that representations be made to the British Government regarding the continued high tolls of the Atlantic Cable Companies, notwithstanding that all the cables are working. They have asked the co-operation of the commercial bodies of other large cities. The statement is officially confirmed that Halifax will, now that the Treaty of Washington has been ratified, soon cease to be the rendezvous for the British North American fleet. Another strike of the cabmen is apprehended in London. The Russian Prince WLADIMIR has left London....The Wurtemburg troops made their triumphal entry into Stuttgardt on Thursday. The Emperor WILLIAM is suffering from an attack of rheumatism. He has made Prince BISMARCK a present of an estate....It is reported that the difficulty between Greece and Turkey has been amicably arranged.

GENERAL.

A business block in Bryan, Texas, was burned on Thursday night, causing a loss amounting to $100,000.

Lieut QUINTON, of the Seventh Infantry, gives an account of a grand smoke with a number of Sioux and Assiniboin Chiefs, at Fort Browning, May 4. They professed to be peaceful, but were exceedingly anxious to procure powder and lead to shoot game. There seems to be a general movement of Indians into Montana. RED CLOUD'S influence is said to be gone, as the savages doubt his accounts of what he saw while in the East, saying "bad medicine" was put in his eyes to make him see what the whites pleased.

A comparative statement from the Internal Revenue Bureau shows the decrease in the collections for the year ending June 30, 1871, as compared with the previous year to be over $40,000,000, and estimates the collections for 1872 at $112,192,201.

The report circulated here yesterday that Commissioner PEARSONTON had resigned, is denied in a dispatch from Washington.

The New-Hampshire Legislature adjourned yesterday, till Wednesday evening. Yesterday's session in the House resulted in voting Mr. FLAGG, the Republican from Portsmouth, Second Ward, out of his seat, and sustaining the Democrat from Northwood.

A dispatch from Shanghai to Bombay confirms the announcement of the capture of the Taiang Hoa forts by the Americans, with slight loss. The Coreans had 240 killed and a great many wounded.

The Tangier oarsmen, better known as the Burton Club, are practicing in the harbor at Halifax, N. S., for the great four-oared race. They are having a boat built in New-York, to cost $400.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in Rochester, N. Y., yesterday, the motion for a new trial in the case of DAVID MONTGOMERY, convicted of the murder of his wife, was denied. A motion has been made for a writ of error and certiorari.

What Will They Do About It?

The Council of Political Reform is an organization which already comprises among its members a large number of the most intelligent citizens and heaviest tax-payers in the various Wards of the City. It is, moreover, making rapid advances both in numbers and influence. The important service it has rendered to the community in the exposition of the true condition of the City's finances and debt—prepared by Mr. HAWKINS and published in yesterday's TIMES—will, we trust, be followed up by other equally fearless, and not less needed, exposures of the iniquity, fraud and mismanagement of our Municipal Government. Since the Citizens' Association was sold out to the "Ring" by its Oily Gammon agent, SANDS, there has been no organization of citizens and tax-payers who made it their business, irrespective of party politics, to ferret out and expose corruption in office, and to try and secure an honest and economical City Government. We are aware that the Council of Political Reform is a very different body from the Citizens' Association; that it employs very different agents, and covers a much wider field of action; but we doubt if anywhere on this continent it can find a field of labor where political reform, in all its aspects, is more urgently demanded than in the City of New-York. It will not do, however, for the Council to content itself with periodical exposures of the abuses and frauds perpetrated by our municipal rulers.

The Council of Political Reform tells the public, as we have often told them, and as every intelligent citizen knows full well, that for nearly three years no report was published of the finances of the City; that of the hundred and fifty millions of dollars that have been spent by our City rulers during that time, the people are not allowed to know how a single dollar was spent—to whom it was paid, when it was paid, or for what purpose. The statement has been repeated over and over again. All intelligent citizens have heard it; tax-payers have heard it—and what have they done? They have folded their hands, opened wide their eyes, and said, "What an outrage!" The "Ring," too, have heard it, and what did they do? Thrusting their hands into their pockets, filled with money filched from the people, they have defiantly asked, "Well! what are you going to do about it?"

Now, this is precisely the question that the Council of Political Reform, and tax-payers, and all honest citizens, are called upon to answer. Can they do anything? or have they the courage to do anything, except to grumble, and then quietly submit to the outrage? We venture to say there is not another city or village on the face of the earth, making any pretensions to free government, whose people would have submitted, even for one year, to allow its officials to squander the money wrung from them by taxation, while defiantly refusing to render any account of how it was spent. Why does New-York submit to it? Simply because there is no public spirit, no unity of action, no combination, no courage, among our tax-payers and leading citizens to demand and enforce their rights and the rights of the people. We imagine that there is a legal way in which any respectable body of tax-payers of this City, could enforce their right to know what has became of the money which they have paid into the City Treasury. If the law does not permit this to be done, then the sooner the law is altered the better. If it does, then the sooner the Council of Political Reform, and all others in sympathy with them, avail themselves of the law the better. Let legal steps be taken to obtain a thorough investigation, by disinterested parties, of all the transactions of the Controller's Office for the last three years. Let the people know what has become of their money; how much has been actually expended, and for what, and how much has been stolen? If the Courts refuse to facilitate such an investigation, let us know the reason of their refusal. If Judge BARNARD or Judge CARDOZO declines to grant the necessary order, let application be made to Judge DALY or Judge BRADY. If no Judge can be found to entertain the application the public will by that time be in a mood to resort to other measures to assert their rights.

The Germans and their Musical Festival.

The recent concourse of Germans to this City for a Musical Festival, must have impressed all American observers from its orderly and genial character. There is something, also, very suggestive in a vast gathering of men of ordinary education and mechanical pursuits, for the purpose of hearing the highest music and exchanging musical sympathies. No other nationality but the German could furnish such a multitude for an object, at once so remote from practical life and so elevated; for in no other nationality has one branch of culture penetrated so deeply. Music is even more than an amusement with great numbers of Germans, and is entwined in all their daily, social and religious life. The best masters—the "classics"—of Germany and Italy, are appreciated by carpenters, and tailors, and furniture-makers, and all the numerous classes of their artisans. No Americans, or Englishmen, or Frenchmen of the same rank of life, could travel hundreds of miles to enjoy BEETHOVEN, or MENDELSSOHN, or MOZART in common, and to spend social hours over the most delicate symphonies and Rhine wine. This combination of the musical and the social tastes, is the characteristic of our German-American citizens, and we believe will have a permanent effect on the nation at large.

Our Celtic fellow-citizens must be amazed to see a vast concourse of social young men, not averse to lager-beer and light wines, and yet not a man intoxicated in the streets, or anywhere a street fight—but all enjoying in respectable quiet the most refined pleasures. Our American residents must look on with wonder at ten thousand active men, meeting in a large city at their various club-houses, and no politics talked, or business urged, or "jobs" manœuvred, or "rings" formed, but all engaged in such intangible pursuits as comparing the "Music of the Past" and the "Music of the Future," and listening to the most delicate and beautiful harmonies that human art has yet invented, and enjoying society, where much wine is drank, and few drink to excess.

What must especially have impressed the Germans visiting our musical clubs, and becoming acquainted with our German-American citizens, is the general inferiority of our City Germans to those from other States in knowledge of national questions, and in an elevated interest in matters of reform. The guests were nearly all Republicans, and friends of the great party of liberty and reform. The hosts were Democrats, supporters of the party of reaction, defenders of slavery, and the great defense of the faction of corruption in this City. The strangers had many of them fought with slavery since they first arrived in their Western villages or inland towns. They still support the party of progress. The New-Yorkers had supported the Copperheads during the war, and now back up the infamous adventurers who are plundering this City. Many of our guests must have queried how this could be; why the German-American of St. Louis is a Republican, and he of New-York a Copperhead and a Democrat; why the one stands up for progress, and the other for reaction.

One reason he will undoubtedly hear given at the outset, for this anomalous state of things, and that is, that the Republican Party are supposed to be determined to cut off the innocent Teutonic pleasures in lager-beer, Rhine wine and such like beverages. If our intelligent German-Americans from the country spend a Sunday here, and then perused the horrible list of murders, fights, and other crimes which disfigure our Monday morning's papers—all the result of unlimited whisky on Sunday among our Celtic fellow-citizens—they will begin to understand the interest which Americans take in repressing these shocking disorders, and that legislation is aimed against this kind of brutal intoxication and its dreadful effects, not against the innocent pleasures of the Germans. Still the Republican Party of this State is not now and never has been, "a cold-water party." It does not propose to pass sumptuary laws, or to interfere with social habits, or now, in the present state of public opinion, to make any change in the Liquor laws, beyond leaving to each community the right to control the traffic in intoxicating drinks. It is willing and ready to recognize the German habits in this matter. Its great object is to prevent the National Government from falling into the hands of its old enemies, and to redeem this City from its rule of corruption. For these purposes it needs all patriotic and public-spirited German-Americans. These friends of liberty in the Fatherland have no natural affinity with the priest-ridden, reactionary, corrupt Irish-Catholic faction who rule this great City. They belong by nature and habit to the Republicans—to the party who saved the country in war and mean now to ennoble it in peace.

The French Throne.

The proposed "fusion" of the respective monarchical candidates for, or claimants of, the throne of France, raises afresh the question of their relative pretensions, and the grounds on which they are founded. What is the basis of the demand of these various Princes to be recognized as King of France, and what advantage, national or dynastical, is to be gained through an amicable coalition? The questions are of sufficient interest at this time to warrant a reply in detail.

First, then, the Count DE CHAMBORD is the representative of the elder branch of the House of BOURBON. He is the great-grandson of LOUIS XV., the grandson of CHARLES X., and the son of the Duc de BERRI, who was assassinated in 1820. The Count DE CHAMBORD was a posthumous son, having been born September 19, 1820, seven months after his father's murder. His title, DE CHAMBORD, is derived from the chateau of that name, given to him by public subscription on the occasion of his baptism. By the death of the Duc D'ANGOULEME, in 1844, the eldest son of CHARLES X., the Count became the sole surviving representative of his line. He married, in 1846, the eldest daughter of the Duke of MODENA, but has no children by her. Hence no legitimate issue of his survive, and this circumstance it is that facilitates the contemplated "fusion" of the two BOURBON branches. The Count DE CHAMBORD has already been formally proclaimed King of France. At the Revolution of 1830, CHARLES X. resolved to abdicate in favor of his grandson, who was forthwith proclaimed before the troops gathered at Rambouillet. The people, however, revised this decision, and the senior member of the Bourbon stock was driven into exile. Of the junior branch, the present representative, born August 24, 1838, is the Comte DE PARIS, LOUIS PHILIPPE ALBERT D'ORLEANS. He is the grandson of the Citizen King, LOUIS PHILIPPE, who was the direct descendant of PHILIPPE, Duc D'ORLEANS, the younger brother of LOUIS XIV. The latter Prince, it will be remembered, married HENRIETTA, daughter of CHARLES I., of England, but had no children by her. By a second marriage, with ELIZABETH CHARLOTTE, of Bavaria, he was more fortunate, having issue, who continued his line. This was the celebrated lady who was said to be so ugly that a Duke of COURLAND, who had been betrothed to her, refused to fulfil his engagement. The Comte DE PARIS, in 1864, married his cousin, MARIE ISABELLE, daughter of the Duc DE MONTPENSIER, fifth son of LOUIS PHILIPPE, and lately candidate for the throne of Spain. Other Princes of this house are the Duc DE NEMOURS, second son of LOUIS PHILIPPE, the Prince DE JOINVILLE, third son, the Duc D'AUMALE, fourth son of the same monarch, and the Duc DE CHARTRES, who, with his brother, the Comte DE PARIS, served on Gen. MCCLELLAN'S Staff in Virginia during our civil war. The Duc DE CHARTRES is married to the eldest daughter of his uncle, the Prince DE JOINVILLE.

The candidates, then, the Count DE CHAMBORD representing the older Bourbon branch, and the Count DE PARIS the younger, are now understood to be negotiating with the view to "fuse" or reconcile their respective claims. It is thought that the former, being past fifty, and having no legitimate children, may come into an arrangement whereby he shall ascend the throne for life, the succession being fixed on the Orleans branch, in the persons of the Count DE PARIS and his heirs. There are, as usual in such cases, a great number of rumors, and probably very few facts yet accomplished in the premises. Among these, however, may be cited the late published letter of the Count DE CHAMBORD, which certainly affords grounds for the supposition that the "fusion" had either taken place, or has been in serious contemplation. Again, the Orleans Princes, with a sagacious deference to the popular will becoming to the representatives of the "citizen king," are reported to have lately replied to all questions put to them something in this wise: "It is for the French nation to decide on its own destinies, and we do not think we have a right to make stipulations in its name, especially when it is represented by a freely-elected Assembly." Meanwhile, the Tours Union Liberale, the organ of the Legitimists, gives the Orleans Princes patronizing credit for lately saying, that so far as they are concerned, they are devoid of personal ambition, and that, in conformity with their previous declarations, they are resolved to bow to every manifestation of the national will, and submit respectfully and unreservedly to the Government freely chosen by France. Moreover, that they feel the deepest respect for the head of the elder branch of their family, and that if the French people should pronounce in favor of the royalty of the Count DE CHAMBORD, they will not hesitate to fulfil on that, as on all other occasions, their duties as Princes and citizens. "This," adds the Union Liberale, approvingly, "is in strict conformity with the conduct of the Princes of Orleans for the last twenty years; we believe that among all parties it will meet with equal approbation."

The will of the people, as the Princes judiciously perceive and say, must, after all, be the important factor in the problem to be resolved. No doubt the supplementary elections of July 2 will afford such clear indications of the popular desire as conclusively to settle the immediate future of France. Those elections, being held in forty-seven departments, will be substantially a plebescite for one-half of the whole country; and it is declared that each constituency will be called upon to reply to a series of plain, unmistakeable questions, so that the answers may be equally definite and unequivocal. When the result is known we may augur with more confidence than at present is possible, the comparative chances for the French throne, of the Monarchists, the Republicans, or of the still powerful and subtle personage who is watching the political game from his retreat at Chiselhurst.

Republicans and Democrats in Maine.

The Republican view of the constitutional amendments, in Maine, presents a very striking contrast to that offered by the Democrats. The latter was like the groping of blind men leading the blind. It made only one thing clear—the muddled condition of its authors' minds. Without affirmative value, its negative propositions were vain repetitions. As the voice of a party in opposition it was weak and trembling; as the expression of a party demanding to be put in power it was hesitant and worthless.

No criticism of this kind can be passed on the resolutions of the Republican Convention. It is not difficult for any man to understand what its authors sustain in the past, what they desire in the future. They believe in retaining and enforcing the three last amendments to the Constitution. They do not merely tolerate them. They are proud of them, as well as of their Republican authorship.

The Maine Republicans do not mince matters in regard to the purposes they expect a sound government to serve. They plainly say that, among those purposes, is the complete protection of the political rights, the personal liberty and the property of every American citizen, everywhere on American soil. They understand the value of their State Government perfectly well. They know its powers and its exclusive effectiveness in local concerns. But they mean that when, as citizens of the United States, they choose to take their property and their families into another State, if they do not find there the privileges and immunities the Constitution guarantees them, the Government of the United States shall be empowered and required to secure them. Whatever Democrats in Maine may or may not think of the constitutionality of this view of the General Government, they have not mustered courage enough to express an authentic opinion upon it. The Republicans are not afraid to do so. Having given the best blood of the State to preserve the Union, they do not lack courage to say what it was they fought for.

A Zoological Prize for Mr. Sweeny.

Some days ago, we published an account of an unprecedented combat in the Ocklawaha River, in Florida, between a number of alligators and a certain mysterious sea-serpent or "devil." When last seen, this terrible monster was carrying all before him, and slaughtered alligators by the dozen attested his prowess. But the local papers vexatiously omitted to mention his eventual fate, and so left us in harrowing suspense. All doubts, however, as to his surviving are now happily put at rest by the Charleston News, which chronicles his arrival in the waters of that harbor. To be sure, he is now metamorphosed from a "sea-serpent or devil" into the more prosaic "devil-fish," and he does not display the same ferocity which characterized him in the Ocklawaha. Indeed, he now reveals a certain sportiveness of disposition which seemed alien to his character. But we are firmly convinced that the vanquisher of the Florida alligators and this Charleston prodigy are the same, and that he is now on his way North for a Summer vacation, or perhaps to visit his brethren at Baldwinsville and elsewhere.

At Charleston, to be sure, he has done nothing very astonishing, merely swallowed an anchor. But it is evident he was restrained from swallowing the boat to which the anchor was attached, only by that strong friendship for the human race which prompted his interference on behalf of the beleaguered steamer in the Ocklawaha. We regret to see, however, that our Charleston contemporary makes a discreditable attempt to belittle this last achievement. The story is that "a party of fishermen who were in a canoe, anchored on the bank off Fort Johnson, saw the water at times agitated, and now and then the black hand of a devil-fish protruding from the surface, and dashing swiftly about." After some minutes spent in its guileless recreation, "the monster disappeared, and soon after the boat was suddenly whirled round like a top, the devil-fish rose to the surface, about thirty feet ahead, and to the horror of those in the canoe, he seemed to have swallowed the anchor—a large stone." Not content with this performance, the mischievous creature "rushed off at break-neck speed," to the great consternation of the unwilling voyagers. Finally, their playful persecutor disgorged the anchor, and the fishermen returned at all speed with it and this captivating narrative to the city.

And now comes in the Charleston News, and with a paltry theory, endeavors to shake the simple faith of these mariners in their prodigy. "It is evident," it says, "that the submarine monster, in frolicking around, had run against the stretched anchor-rope, and, catching it in the nook between his head and fin, had become frightened." As if a devil-fish could be frightened. We receive this explanation with entire scorn, and it would seem only fitting that the unbelieving editor should some time be caught in a river full of devouring alligators, with no sea-devil to help him. For ourselves we accept this delightful monster with all his embellishments, and we suggest that if he visits us, Mr. SWEENY should at once secure him for the zoological Paradise which he is arranging in the Central Park. Quartered in the Lake, which might be extended, if necessary, and kept in good humor by an occasional Republican tax-payer for breakfast, this engaging monster would prove a great addition to the beauties of the Park. He would, besides, furnish an agreeable occupation to our accomplished naturalist in deciding under which of the two great divisions of his fauna he should be classified, with his carnivori or with his "wolves and bears." And if, during these researches, the monster should sometimes take Mr. SWEENY for an anchor or an alligator, and swallow him, we should all mourn him, of course, but our grief would be tempered by the reflection that the Park might possibly be the gainer.

Swallowing Up New-Jersey.

Whether or not there is any connection, as many have supposed, between the late earthquake-shock in this vicinity and the mysterious caving in of the Morris and Essex Canal, certainly the good people of the neighborhood have been greatly agitated by that phenomenon. Wise old farmers sagely shake their heads and opine that it is of no use to attempt to fill up the breaks, that the bottom of the canal had fallen out, and that no amount of patching could replace it. And undoubtedly the occurrence is rather startling and calculated to shake one's confidence in the stability of terra firma. Especially unpleasant and discouraging must it have been for the owners of the land on either side of the canal where the same portentous "caving in" was repeated. To see a valuable field or patch of woodland suddenly sink into the bowels of the earth and disappear from mortal view is by no means reassuring either to nerves or pocket.

We do not know on what theory the phenomenon has been accounted for, if at all. But it is worthy of note that very similar "breaks," occurring recently in various parts of the country, have been traced to a very simple cause. In Ararat township, for example, an extent of railroad sank out of sight into the earth. The name of the place made such a disaster seem unusually portentous and discomforting, until investigation showed that this part of the road had been built on what appeared to be solid earth, but was really only a thin crust overlying a subterranean pond. A dense growth of water-lilies is supposed to have furnished the foundation, on which gradual accumulations of dirt formed a superstructure strong enough at last to support a heavy growth of wood, and for a long time the weight of heavy teams. Indeed there can be little doubt that this is the true explanation of the mystery. In another pond in the same township the same process is now going on, and in Ohio and Illinois several similar formations have been discovered.

Probably in some such source as this, will be found the cause of the New-Jersey landslide. So the good people of Broadway may take comfort against the apprehension of being immediately swallowed up. At least the only present danger of that sort to this unhappy little State seems to come not so much from any convulsions of nature as from the unscrupulous ambition of Pennsylvania railroads.

MINOR TOPICS.

It is hardly to be wondered at, that all reference to the exhaustive and startling exhibit of City finance drawn up by Mr. DEXTER A. HAWKINS, should have been carefully excluded from the avowed organs of the local Ring. Its avoidance by the stipendiaries of Tammany is an unmistakeable testimony to its conclusive and unanswerable character. It may, however, have surprised people who are not aware of the "muzzling" process to which the New-York Tribune has lately been subjected by our City rulers, to observe how studiously that journal belittled the labors of Mr. HAWKINS and his associates. The Tribune presents a mutilated and highly imperfect version of Mr. HAWKINS' paper, introducing it with a smeering reference to "the self-imposed task of certain prominent politicians, lawyers and financiers of the Republican Party," and to "the fine resolutions and startling declarations" which were made at the Cooper Institute meeting. If a short course of Ring pap has so far clouded the mental vision of the Tribune that it fails to sympathize with, and studiously refrains from approving of an attack upon one of the most vulnerable points of the colossal misrule of this City, what may we expect it to become after a protracted course of the same diet?

Mr. BERGH is, strange to say, perfectly unmoved by Mayor HALL'S touching and appropriate reference to his intense "affective" qualities. He replies to the Mayor's epistle in arguments which differ from those of his opponent in being expressed in good English and with excellent taste. Mr. BERGH reminds Mayor HALL that the detention of public traffic complained of, is chargeable not to his officers but to the offending car companies, and to the public who are left but little choice in the matter. No right-minded man can help applauding a resolution like the following: "As this duty is an affair of conscience, no official or public protest or clamor should mislead me from the exercise of exact justice, and, therefore, I shall remain at my post and fight the 'battle of the brutes' until that day shall arrive, which I trust never may dawn, when the people of this State shall command me to desist." The bad effects which the Mayor's letter has already had in encouraging the street-railroad and stage companies to renewed acts of cruelty, forms one of the most potent arguments against it.

A letter has been published from JOHN QUINCY ADAMS which gives a very fair illustration of the muddle of contemporary Democratic ideas, to which even the acutest intellects of the party fail to give consistency. Mr. ADAMS has put himself in the place of a Southern alarmist who was greatly troubled by the apparition conjured up by the World, of President GRANT as "the man on horseback." The Massachusetts leader, apparently, fails to share his Southern brother's apprehensions touching a Republican coup d'état. More than this, he is moved to declare that the experiment of secession has satisfied the Northern Democracy that no cause is worth a civil war. He can imagine himself "an unrepentant rebel," but "weak enough to await the resurrection of secession" he does not think he could be. This is satisfactory, were it not that further statements of the letter completely neutralize these concessions. For example, the whole internal policy of the present Administration is held to mean war; so, it naturally follows, does reconstruction and the Kuklux bill. "This Union," says Mr. ADAMS, "is now held together by force." What he expects to happen after the pressure is withdrawn is not stated.

Alas for our pet Indian, the outspoken, high-souled and truthful RED CLOUD! He has shared the fate of the Oriental potentate who was voted mad by his subjects for saying that he had been to a country where water became solid. RED CLOUD has recounted, in his graphic way, the marvels of the white man's civilization, and his people say that bad medicine has been put over RED CLOUD'S eyes, for these things cannot be. So the sceptre has departed from the great chief, and LITTLE BULL, who is feared of all the Indians, and has declared undying war against the whites, reigns in his stead.

Apart from the question of whether free trade is suitable to the existing state of French industry, M. ROUHER, the Bonapartist, is unquestionably wrong in assuming that its opponents are mere factions. The commercial treaties which will shortly be repealed, were ratified by the Emperor without the consent of the Legislative Chamber, and even the modified free trade, in the form of reciprocity, which these agreements sanction, would certainly not have been conceded had a vote been taken on their merits. Three years' experience of the operation of a liberal revenue policy has partially strengthened the position of French Free-traders, but has also furnished fresh arguments to the Protectionists. Nothing is more likely to be in favor with the French tax-payer at the present juncture than increased customs duties. M. THIERS is a steadfast Protectionist, and his Minister of Finance is the head and mouth-piece of that party in France. A Protectionist policy is therefore an inseparable part of his régime, and as free trade is only favored among Republicans or Bonapartists, it is equally certain that in the probable event of a monarchical restoration France is equally committed to high duties on imports.

FISK, Jr., who owns a railroad, an opera-house, two lines of steamers and a regiment of the National Guard, probably considers himself above the reach of criticism. His name was nevertheless mentioned with no small amount of indignation by two or three hundred ladies and gentlemen who assembled on the wharf at the foot of Murray-street, on Thursday afternoon. These people had gone thither to take the steamboat Jesse Hoyt, which is advertised to sail every afternoon at 3½ o'clock for Long Branch, but no steamer was to be found. It transpired that FISK and his partner, GOULD, had taken possession of the steamer for the purpose of transporting a private party of ladies to Long Branch, and had set sail an hour before the time advertised, leaving the "obscure crowd" to sun themselves on the dock until the next steamer started. Of course New-Yorkers have no redress against a man like FISK, Jr., but the Railroad Company who have a contract with FISK to run their cars so as to connect with his boats at certain hours, might put in a word of objection.

Is the fatal line of imitation—MEYERS tragedies—to be indefinitely prolonged? First, Mr. VALLANDIGHAM shoots himself in trying to show how MEYERS might have shot himself, and now a German farm laborer near Hamilton has shot himself in attempting to show the mode of VALLANDIGHAM'S death. Social philosophers have, before now, shown how inevitably the most atrocious crimes find a certain amount of reproduction. Perhaps a similar morbid perversion of the imitative faculty may explain a coincidence like the present, which is in itself sufficiently remarkable.

Slight Fires.

A fire occurred yesterday in the basement of No. 113 Maiden-lane, occupied by FREDERICK HABARSTOCK, dealer in kerosene-oil, causing a loss of $1,000 on stock; insured for $2,500 by the International Company. The fire was caused by a workman carelessly dropping a lighted match into some oil.

Shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a fire, originating in a defective flue in the three-story tenement-house, No. 145 Hamilton-street, damaged the premises to the extent of $150.

Continuation of Our Reports of Commencement Exercises.

Alumni Day at Williams—Gen. Sherman at Georgetown College—Alumni Meeting of the College of the City of New-York.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE.

Alumni Day—Business Meeting—Oration and Poem—Boating Review—Prize Speaking.

From Our Special Correspondent.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Wednesday, June 28, 1871.

Not a Senior slept last night. The last strains of music had hardly died away in Goodrich Hall before the class supper began, and it ended not till sometime after dawn. Then the class joined hands near the chapel and sang the Class Ode:

ODE.

Air—"America"

Hail to our Seventy-one;
Bright be our Seventy-one
Noble its aim.
Eyes beaming earnestly,
Hearts linked in unity
And Immortality,
Guarding its name.

The doings of today go to prove that this Commencement is not only a pleasant but also a brilliant one for Williams. At 9 A. M. Rev. DORUS CLARK, ('77,) D. D., of Boston, called the Society of the Alumni to order, and prayer was offered by Rev. HUBBARD BEEBE, ('33.) Afterward the obituary record, of which I have spoken before, were read by the Secretary, Rev. Dr. GRIFFIN, ('34.) A Committee on Nominations was appointed, who presented the following names as a suitable list of officers for another year: Gen. JAS. A. GARFIELD, ('56,) for President; Rev. JOHN E. WOODBRIDGE, ('22,) Vice-President; Dr. GRIFFIN, Secretary. After the election of these gentlemen, a report of the Board of Visitors, appointed by the Alumni to visit the College and take cognisance of its needs, was submitted to the meeting by E. A. HUBBARD, ('42,) of Springfield, Mass. Then Gen. GARFIELD made a speech, expressing his surprise and pleasure at being made President of the Alumni, and remarking that the chief benefit of such gatherings is that they make those who participate in them feel young again. Up to this point the meeting had been held in Alumni Hall, but the crowd becoming too great an adjournment was had to the chapel below. A large number of ladies were present, and it was not easy in a room that will seat three hundred for a late comer to find a good seat. It is a little curious to trace the change in custom, by which ladies are coming to be welcomed in all college gatherings, where their presence was a few years ago unknown. They attend the Alumni dinner here as a regular thing; they are seen at Alumni meetings, and this year they were present at the Senior examination. Several ladies, residents in the town, are in the habit of attending some of the College recitations, and today Prof. JOHN BASCOM ('40) made a strong speech in favor of admitting ladies to a regular standing in college.

THE FUNDS.

A report from a committee of the Trustees was made to the Alumni by Hon. G. B. KELLOGG, of Troy, in which he stated that the funds of the College amount to $287,304 03. The income during the past year from those funds was $25,230 07, and the disbursements and nominal expenses of the year were $24,111 22. The value of the College buildings and grounds is not reckoned in with the funds. The grounds are soon to be surveyed, and a careful inventory of all property will be taken. In closing his report Mr. KELLOGG took occasion to speak of the great good the College has done in the past on so small a capital, and the blessing of God that has ever attended it. The following gentlemen were appointed as visitors in future: C. E. HOOKER, ('57,) R. M. WRIGHT, ('41,) of East Hampton, Mass., and E. FLINT, of Hinsdale, Mass. The meeting took a decidedly practical turn, and most of the time was spent in discussing efforts to raise money for scholarships, so as to put the College on a better basis, and induce more students to come here. Speeches were made by Hon. E. C. BENEDICT, ('21,) New-York; Dr. D. CLARKE, Rev. J. E. WOODBRIDGE, of South Williamstown; DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, Prof. GILSON, ('53,) and Prof. WILLIAM THOMPSON, Hartford, Conn., all bearing on the money question. Mr. WOODBRIDGE said that in one year he should hope to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation, and he wished his class, of whom only five members are living, and all the forty-nine classes that have graduated since, might furnish to the College a $1,000 scholarship. Dr. THOMPSON said he hoped the Alumni would not confine their efforts to raise money to their own number. He should be glad, although not an Alumnus, to be one of ten to give a scholarship. The following committee was appointed to superintend the getting up of class scholarships: Rev. FRANCIS WILLIAMS, ('28,) Chaplaine, Conn.; Prof. GILSON, Hon. JOSEPH WHITE, ('36,) Williamstown.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

The following gentlemen were elected honorary members of the Society of Alumni: Rev. Dr. Patterson, Chicago; Rev. Mr. Mastore, Matteawan, N. Y.; Rev. Wm. T. Herrick, Claverack, N. Y.; Prof. Wm. Thompson, Hon. H. G. Knight, East Hampton, Mass., and Collector Russell, of Boston. All of the above, save Messrs. THOMPSON and RUSSELL, have sons in the Graduating Class. Toward the end of the meeting speeches were made by Hon. C. H. HILL, ('56;) Dr. PRIME, ('29;) Ex-Gov. EMORY WASHBURN, ('17;) Hon. JOSEPH WHITE and others. At noon the Class of '61 held a meeting at the new hotel called Greylock Hall, over at the "Land Sorings," two miles north of the village. The Class of '56, of '51, of '41, of '36, all had meetings sometime during the day or evening. A large audience listened to the address and poem before the Society of the Alumni, the delivery of which began in the church at 2 P. M. The orator, Rev. D. R. CADY, ('38), took for his theme, The College "Prominent above the University." In the course of it he made a plea for country colleges. He said: Masses of men and crowded populations tend to corruption. In the Old World the question is how to preserve the public virtue. The schemes and labors of British philanthropy are stupendous, but one is pained by seeing what a slight impression these vast labors make upon the mass of corruption against which they are directed. We are laying foundations, we are driving the piles and raising the arches. This young empire must be molded aright. But for this, enlightened, practical, self-denying workers are needed. In training up such men, our chief reliance is in our colleges. They are established all over the land, and are in contact with and a part of the people. Numbers of young men, from the very proximity of the college, become, they occasionally see its towers and hear its bells chiming out on the morning air, attend its anniversaries. Young men of physical vigor and mental and moral stamina—just such men as the world wants, and who would otherwise be farmers and mechanics—are stimulated to a course of liberal study, and such one lifts up, more or less, the home circle. Books find their way into the old farm-house; here and there is seen a picture over its walls before bare. The sisters are better educated. The cousins feel a new intellectual stimulus. In the whole affiliated group, the circle of thought and the topics of conversation are widened—vulgarisms in speech are corrected, and the whole life educated. So the college, attracting our young man, benefits and blesses a whole circle of kindred through him, and then it establishes him somewhere else, a new centre of influence, of permanent honor. One walks through the venerable quadrangles of Oxford, under the massive gateway, that were the pride of Sir CHRISTOPHER WREN, amid the crowded alcoves of the Bodleian Library, along the shaded walks where the learned men of centuries have strolled, and with his imagination taken being taken captive by the spirit of the place, he sighs for something like this in the new world, and forgets that these influences tend to produce just the kind of men that we do not want—tories in politics and ritualists in religion. We need literary institutions which lie close to the hearts of the people, through whose arteries their life-blood flows, and along every nerve of which the spirit of popular freedom throbs. These country colleges, small though they be, always draws a large crowd, and is very popular. The programme to-night was as follows:

"Social Theories," Charles May, Lee, Mass.; "Willard the Silent," John M. Ould, Belleville, Ohio; "Our Danger," T. W. Sanders, West Hallock, Ill.

JUNIORS.

"Statesmanship," D. S. Williams, Flushing, N. Y.; "A Triumph of Peace," S. H. Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, N. J.; "Conservatism," George B. Abbott, Brooklyn, N. Y.; "Man in the Image of God," Jos. Berens, Philadelphia, Penn.; "The Massacre of 1965," George A. Ford, Geneseo, Ill.; "No Man Should Live for Himself Alone," George D. Rumsey, Chicago, Ill.; "The Sleeper," L. D. Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, N. J.

The Prize Committee were Rev. HENRY HOPKINS, ('58,) Rev. J. C. FRENCH, ('53,) and Prof. LEWELLYN PRATT, ('53.) The $50 were given to MAY, the $25 to S. H. WOODBRIDGE and BERENS, the $15 to WILLIAMS and ABBOTT. H. W.

CITY COLLEGE ALUMNI.

Annual Reunion—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Associate Alumni of the College of the City of New-York was held last evening at the College buildings, and was attended by several hundred of the members. Immediately after the meeting was called to order the business of electing officers for the ensuing year was taken up, with the following result:

President, HENRY E. TREMAINE; Vice-President, Edwin M. Cox; Secretary, Wm. Stratford; Treasurer, James Knox; Historian, Fred. J. De Peyster; Trustees of the Students' Aid Fund, Alfred G. Compton, Chas. L. Holt, Everett P. Wheeler, James. Godwin, John Hardy; Executive Committee, Peter B. Wight, William M. Banks; Member at Large, Joseph Kooli, and one member from each class of the Alumni. An exhaustive report was then read from the Committee on Examination, complimenting President WEBB on the success that had attended his administration; and also stating that a thorough examination into the charges made to the trustees against the efficiency of Prof. DOCKARTY as instructor in mathematics, had resulted in completely disproving them. Recommendations from the Executive Committee were then in order. These were, first, that the balance of the yearly revenue of the Alumni should be reserved for the purpose of forming a permanent fund, to be used as might seem best at some future time. This was agreed to. Next, that the Alumni should use their efforts to secure for the professors and tutors their proper salary belonging to their positions, which in many cases was not paid, and in case this should not be sufficient as compared with the amount paid to instructors in the sister colleges of the City, to urge its increase. This, also, was concurred in.

The Examining Committee reported in favor of changing the present mode of examination, so that it should not be either wholly oral or wholly written, but an equitable proportion of both, which, in their judgment, was the only proper way; also, that instead of a semi-annual, there should be but one examination a year. After some discussion on these points, it was proposed to appoint a special meeting to consider them in October, as hasty action might be detrimental to the interests of the college. This was agreed to. The Alumni then passed a vote of thanks to the Class of '68 for their action in refusing to apply for the degree of Master of Arts while no particular meaning or worth was attached to it other than the fact of applying. The meeting then took a recess to partake of a collation which had been prepared, after which some minor questions were introduced and passed, the whole concluding with a social reunion.

OTHER INSTITUTIONS.

Fifty-fourth Commencement at Georgetown—The Cincinnati High School.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30.—At the fifty-fourth annual Commencement of Georgetown College, yesterday, Gen. SHERMAN, in the course of a short address, said the attempt to divide the Union, in our generation, failed, and it would always fail; and he would as soon expect to see an attempt to dissolve this Union in the future come from the North as from the South. But, it will never come, for now we are joined together stronger than by bands of steel.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 30.—The Commencement Exercises of the High School took place this morning, in Pike's Opera-house, before an immense audience. There were forty-two graduates.

FIJI ISLANDS.

War and Cannibalism—Troubles Among the Natives.

The Honolulu Gazette publishes the following account of recent difficulties in Ovalau:

"The great topic of conversation here, and one which, to my mind, is of paramount importance, is the present warlike aspect of the natives—not, as yet, toward the white population, but among themselves. At the back of this island, and only a few miles from the beach, is a powerful tribe known as the Levoni. On the north end of the island reside another tribe, both being tributary to THAKOMBAU. These two tribes appear to have had some differences, and had fought, the particulars of which were made known to the King by a Chief named CORNELIUS. Upon obtaining this information, THAKOMBAU sent over to the Levoni men, requesting them to desist from fighting. The reply was that they would kill the individual who informed him of their doings, and who they soon found out to be CORNELIUS. I should state that up to this time, the people of all the tribes on Ovalau had professed Christianity, and CORNELIUS was said to be a most exemplary and pious man, well known to the missionaries as a native teacher. Nevertheless, upon CORNELIUS making his appearance among them, he was instantly clubbed, his body mutilated and then interred. Two days after his interment the body was exhumed, in accordance with an old, native custom, and a 'man-oven' was constructed and heated with red-hot stones. Into this the body of poor CORNELIUS was thrust and baked like a pig. And then a barbarian feast was held by these beastly cannibals, who devoured every portion of the remains, picking the bones clean, and reserving them as trophies. But this only whetted their appetite for human flesh, and they next made another onslaught on their neighbors at the north end of the island, and have killed, I understand, about thirty, all of whom is believed have been eaten. MAAFU, who resides at Loma, and is a Chief of great renown, (the present owner of the yacht Xarifa,) having some antipathy to THAKOMBAU, takes the part it is said of the Levoni cannibals, and has supplied them with powder, ball and muskets. Meanwhile THAKOMBAU, with the naval force which is characteristic of these powerful Fiji chiefs, sent to the Levoni to tell them to put up their war-fences, and build their forts, as it was his intention, so soon as he got his army together, to come over to them and fight them. His Majesty is now making vast preparations for this assault. At least every day from remote parts of his dominions, war canoes full of fighting men are arriving at Levuka, and taking up their residences at the native villages; and there must be now some thousands of them congregated here. Fighting, indeed, has actually commenced. The Levoni are said to be ensconced in an impregnable fortification, upon a rock. Yet it is also said they believe they will be vanquished by THAKOMBAU, who no doubt will overcome them, and put to death all the ring-leaders, making prisoners of the rest, who, it is anticipated, will be sold to the planters. It must be remarked that these Fiji belligerents are fully armed with muskets (many breech-loaders of the newest pattern) and revolvers, besides their spears and clubs, and are most excellent shots. But they are not drilled, and their warfare is purely of the guerrilla kind."

NEW-CALEDONIA.

Characteristics of the French Penal Settlement of the Future.

The San Francisco Morning Bulletin supplies some facts concerning New-Caledonia, in these terms: "The importance of the Island of New-Caledonia is greatly enhanced by the fact that it is to receive 20,000 French exiles. The island lies to the eastward of Australia, between latitude 20° and 23°, and longitude 164° and 167°. It is 220 miles long and from thirty to forty miles in breadth. The surface is diversified, but the general aspect is that of great ruggedness, and its central range of mountains looms up to the height of 5,000 feet. Coral reefs and small islands surround it, leaving but two safe openings for vessels, Port Balade on the north-east and Port St. Vincent on the south-west. The aboriginal inhabitants are Austral negroes. The island is well watered, and produces tropical fruits in great abundance. The soil in the valleys is extremely fertile, and the climate excellent. The island lies almost in the direct line of the steamers now plying between San Francisco, Hawaii, Fiji and Australia. The French Government took possession of the country in 1852, and established a small settlement and station for their Pacific squadron. This immense colony which is about to succeed this establishment cannot in any very objectionable sense be called a penal colony. Political offenses below the grade of treason do not reduce the perpetrators to the rank of felons, and although the inexorable logic of history convicts the class of French Communists of most terrible excesses and appalling atrocity, they may not be denied the mitigating plea of mighty provocation. Men can hardly be expected to act with coolness, nor always with humanity, when every social and political relation is disrupted, when they smart under the disgrace of foreign conquest and triumph, when everything about them is suggestive of violence and portentous of ruin, and when they believe or imagine that those in whom they have confided for safety are the authors of, or responsible for, the miseries which they suffer. Even the Versailhists must offer some apology of this kind to that world which has read the revolting details of their own atrocities. Notwithstanding, therefore, the crimes of these exiles from France, they will carry to New-Caledonia the most intense and radical ideas of liberty, and their descendants may yet form an important element in the organization of that great Austral Island Confederacy of republics which is one of the predictions of our age. Although the new colony will be for a time placed under the harsh discipline and close surveillance of the military power, so large a body of people must very soon escape from the condition of mere prisoners, and will contribute no insignificant portion to the commercial interests of California and the island countries around them. Their numbers will increase and their industry will soon turn to practical account every advantage of soil and climate in their exile home. We must therefore see something else in this new movement than the mere establishment of a remote and inaccessible penal colony."

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

Chief-Justice Chase's Compact with the Democrats.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In the TIMES of this morning you mention a political matter which took place in Ohio in 1848 or 1849, in which Chief-Justice S. P. CHASE took a prominent part. At the time mentioned the County of Hamilton, which includes Cincinnati, gave an average majority for the Democrats, of between 3,000 and 4,000, entitled to four members of the General Assembly of Ohio. Of course this majority on general ticket could not be overcome by any party voting against the Democrats, but upon counting noses, it was found that by dividing Cincinnati into four separate election districts, two Democrats and two Free-soilers, or Whigs, could be elected to the Assembly. Accordingly, the Assembly having a majority composed of Free-soilers and Whigs, this very thing was done, and each party put up four candidates for the Assembly, composed of Democrats, Whigs and Free-soilers, which were voted for. On the day of election, when the votes were counted out, it was found that two Democrats, one Whig and one Free-soiler were elected to the Assembly of Ohio, but the Clerk of the Court of Hamilton gave the certificate of election to the four Democrats, on the ground that the act of the Assembly was unconstitutional, which proved to be true, and the act of Assembly was repealed. Mr. CHASE himself, being a Free-soiler, took strong grounds at that time against the outrage, as he called it, of the County Clerk.

When the Assembly met, it was ascertained that the Senate of Ohio contained one majority of Whigs and Free-soilers. In the House, I think, one majority of Democrats, including the four from Cincinnati with the Clerk's certificate, and two of these seats were contested by the other side and referred to the Committee on Elections.

Mr. CHASE was anxious to go to the United States Senate, and confidently expected to find enough on his side to send him there; but in this was sadly disappointed, for in counting up it was found that there would be two majority against him on joint ballot, leaving the whole matter in the hands of GEO. E. PUGH and a Mr. EWING, the two regularly elected Democrats from Cincinnati. But Mr. CHASE was determined to go to the United States Senate anyhow. Accordingly, he goes up to Columbus (this being the first session of a new Assembly) and makes a bargain with PUGH that if he and RUNYON would vote for him to go to the United States Senate, the Democratic Party should have every State office to be filled by the Senate of the State, &c. This was accepted by PUGH, and S. P. CHASE was elected by a majority of two to go to the United States Senate, and every office in the State was filled by a Democrat. Six years afterward, GEO. E. PUGH himself was elected to the United States Senate, and it was surmised that this arrangement had something to do with it. This is the way that S. P. CHASE got into the United States Senate twenty years ago. Though myself belonging to the old Whig Party at that time, I would never after this transaction cast my vote for S. P. CHASE for any office, and if any party thinks that Mr. CHASE will adhere to any party longer than it will suit his own individual interest, they will be very much mistaken in that interest. He should remain where he now is.

I write this from memory, but if you will consult the files of the Cincinnati Commercial the next year, I think, after Mr. CHASE was sent to the United States Senate, you will learn all about it. Yours, CINCINNATI.

Accidents at Railroad Crossings.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your reference in today's issue to the necessity of greater precautions at railroad crossings, is worthy the attention of the New-York and Harlem Railroad Company, who own the track over which they and the New-Haven Railroad run from the new depot at Forty-second street. They run about twenty-five passenger trains each way per day, besides many freight-trains, and they run very rapidly through a thickly-settled part of the City and North New-York, in Westchester County, without a single flagman at any street, save at the ends of the cut and tunnel. There is not a day but that horses are frightened, and the wonder is that horses and wagons and foot passengers are not more frequently run over. The Company should be compelled to fence in the entire road, at least as far north as William's Bridge, with a gate at each street and crossing and a man to close it while trains are passing. It is only a few days ago that a young lady was instantly killed at Morrisania, and last week a boy was run over and injured there, while several accidents have happened in the City of late.

It is dangerous to the safety of the railroad passengers, for a train is liable to be thrown from the track at any time, and it is bad enough now, but will be much worse as soon as the Hudson and New-York Central trains run over this part of the road.

I trust you will make such a "stir" about it in your powerful paper that the Company will be compelled to perform their duty to the public and their passengers, even if it does cost something out of their immense dividends. The New-Jersey Railroad Company have their track fenced in through Jersey City with gates at each crossing, which are lowered during the passage of every train or locomotive.

Very truly yours,
AN EVERY-DAY PASSENGR.

The Normal College Commencement—Card of Explanation from Mr. Hunter.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Although I shrink from newspaper controversy, I feel it incumbent on me to correct some ungenerous misstatements which appeared in your issue of yesterday in relation to the recent Commencement of the Normal College. The parquet was occupied by the students of the institution. The boxes were reserved for the meritorious graduates; for those who participated in the exercises; for the families of some of the instructors, and for members of the Department of Public Instruction. No person or persons dictated directly or indirectly as to whom these boxes should be given; and any statement to the contrary is simply untrue. The hour was changed from 7 in the evening to 3 in the afternoon, with the view of avoiding a great rush of people to the Academy. I could not foresee that a new and comparatively unknown institution should attract so vast an audience. The only mistake was that of issuing too many tickets—a mistake which can be easily remedied in the future.

As to the other insinuations, they are unworthy of notice. THOS. HUNTER,
President Normal College.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, June 29, 1871.

Normal College Commencement—Another Malcontent.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I notice a communication in today's issue of your paper in reference to the arrangements carried out on that occasion, all of which came under my own observation.

As I had friends in the school who furnished me with a ticket, and wished me to be present, I remained up-town from my business for the sole purpose of attending the exercises. When I reached the Academy of Music I found a large crowd at the entrance, who could not gain admittance, on the ground that the building was full. Now, had this been true, nothing could be said except that it was rather absurd to issue tickets enough to fill three buildings the size of the Academy; but such was not the case. After standing in the crowd over half an hour a gentleman came out, saying it was an outrage, that the building was not full, and that there was room for over five hundred more persons. After a great deal of talk, the doors were opened, and I, among a number of others, gained admission. I soon saw why we had been kept out. A box near me in the dress circle, intended to seat four persons, was occupied by a lady representative of the Emerald Isle. She looked as if she might be a washerwoman, or the wife of some school officer. And this was the case all through the house. The Emerald Isle predominated and monopolized the room which was to spare, and which would have accommodated a great many who were denied admittance.

"The Harp that Once through Tara's Halls" and other Irish melodies were sung. Mr. O'GORMAN spun out an everlong speech, which was loudly applauded by the Emerald Islers, and, take it all in all, it was a very fine Tammany exhibition.

MR. BERGH AND THE MAYOR.

Cruelty to Car-Horses—Reply to Mayor Hall's Letter.

Mr. HENRY BERGH, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, yesterday sent to the President of the Board of Police the following communication, protesting vigorously against the recommendations contained in the Mayor's letter:

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.
Office No. 696 Broadway.
NEW-YORK, June 30, 1871.

To the President of the Board of Police and to the Superintendent:

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was chartered by the State of New-York in 1866, and among its incorporators are to be seen the names of men of almost all religious and political denominations, his Honor Mayor HALL among the number. In 1867 a statute was enacted, the title of which seems to be sufficiently expressive of its purpose, to wit: "The Prevention of Cruelty to Animals." One section of its charter reads thus: "The Police Force of the City of New-York, as well as of all other places where Police organizations exist, shall, as occasion may require, aid the Society, its members and agents, in the inforcement of all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted for the protection of dumb animals." The persistent and terrible overloading of the City railroad cars, containing often more than 100 passengers, which two feeble, and as is shown by the prevailing disease among railroad horses, badly-fed animals, are compelled to drag up and down the hills of this City, is a spectacle too full of inhumanity for the law to tolerate or the merciful public to endure without remonstrance. Hence this office is the recipient of continuous complaints, not unfrequently bearing the evidence of quasi justice, and always painful to the understanding. "Fine it," say these communications, "you enforce the laws with prompt severity against truckmen, hackmen and venders of fish and kindling-wood, but the great and rich corporations pursue their cruelties with impunity." Now this rebuke is not just, nor is it intended by its utterers to be unjust. It is simply the result of ignorance of all we are doing, and of the existing and arming power of railroad influence upon State and Federal legislation. I have this morning seen a letter from his Honor Mayor HALL, addressed to the President of the Board and to the Superintendent of Police, recommending a suspension of the seventh section of the charter of this Society, so far as it relates to these rich and potent associations, thereby practically annulling, so far as they are concerned, the statute of 1867. He is a distinguished lawyer and magistrate, and knows better than I do, the justice and policy of such a recommendation; but I cannot forbear to give expression to the reflection, of what use is this Society and the laws under which it acts, if the said recommendation is to prevail? With what show of justice or right can I suffer or leave the vehicles of these rich and powerful corporations, having a sick, sore, or disabled horse before, and containing, may be, 140 persons, from dragging its life-out in its frantic efforts to prevent the 'detention of hundreds and hundreds of passengers,' and at the next moment stop and arrest a miserable and it may be unconscious offender driving a coal cart. That sense of humanity which has inspired the personal sacrifices which I have so long made in behalf of these faithful and devoted servants of mankind rebels at the contemplation of such unequal justice, and is shared, I am sure, by every reflecting man and woman. On the 7th of February, 1866, His Honor Recorder HACKETT charged a jury, and a verdict was rendered against the Bleecker-street line for a violation of the very law now forming the subject of the Mayor's communication, and a fine of $250 was imposed on both driver and conductor. Railroad power has rendered this verdict, however, thus far inoperative, but the counsel of the Society is about arguing it on appeal. The question is do we prevent cruelty to animals if we permit an overloaded horse, or one with, for illustration, a shattered leg, to go to its "place of destination;" or do we assist it in the prolongation of the cruelty? The practical operation of the enforcement of the law in its application to street railroads is this: A car is seen not overloaded, but having a horse in its shafts lame, or unable to drag it. The driver is notified of the fact and requested to send the animal back to the stable. If complied with the horses are removed, and a detention of not exceeding five minutes ensues, or until the following car approaches, when that team is attached to the detained vehicle, and it moves immediately. Detention is only the result of legal arrest. When a car is so overloaded as to inflict a great cruelty to the horses, and thereby offend the law made for their relief, my instructions to the officers of the Society are: to follow until some unmistakable evidence of the cruelty and inability of the animals to draw it is manifested; and then, apprizing the driver of the fact, request that sufficient horse-power be attached to the car to drag it. This is our only recourse; for we have clearly no right to order the public to alight, or to refrain from packing themselves as tightly as they please, and being as uncomfortable as they may elect to be. I submit, therefore, that it logically follows, if the public are detained en route, it is not the fault of the Society for "preventing" the visible cruelty, but that of the corporation, supplemented by the public themselves. I would not inconvenience any one in the discharge of my duty to the law and to these lowly servants of ours, but I am resolved not to discriminate between persons and corporations, rich or poor; and if it be the opinion of my fellow-citizens that my removal from the sphere of these self-imposed and most onerous labors would inure to their advantage, or to the creatures whose sufferings first prompted such action, no one would acquiesce more readily than I; but as this duty is an affair of conscience, no official, or public protest or clamor should mislead me from the exercise of exact justice, and therefore I shall remain at my post, and in the "battle of the brutes" until that day shall arrive, which I trust may never dawn, when the people of this State shall command me to desist. In the interest of civilization and humanity I respectfully entreat, therefore, that disregarding, as I feel convinced you will, all private interests, passion and prejudice, you will not push aside the benign operation of this law, no matter how potent and exalted be the applicant.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,
HENRY BERGH, President.

More Cars and Stages Stopped by Order of Mr. Bergh.

Yesterday some of the railway lines and stage companies, taking advantage of the opinion expressed by Mayor HALL, turned out some of their worst stock, thinking, no doubt, that Mr. HENRY BERGH would let them alone, but they were very much mistaken. Car No. 87, on the Tenth-avenue line, came down with a very lame horse, and was stopped by one of the officers of the Society. Mr. BROWN, the Superintendent, protested, but to no purpose. The car had to remain until fresh horses were sent down. Mr. CAMPBELL declared that if BROWN ordered the lame horse in again, he would arrest him and lock him up.

In Broadway several stages were stopped. A "spotter" of the Madison-avenue line of stages had a copy of the TIMES in his pocket, upon one of the stages of that line coming down with a lame horse, and being stopped by Mr. BERGH, he immediately produced the copy of Mayor HALL'S letter, and defied BERGH to stop the stage. It was stopped, however, and kept for two hours, until another horse was obtained. The "spotter" rushed to Police Head-quarters for the purpose, as he said, of obtaining Police assistance to liberate the stage, but as he was not seen again, it is inferred that he did not obtain it.

FERRY FACILITIES.

Why the Old Jackson Ferry Failed—The New Brooklyn Ferry Project—Why it Should Succeed.

The old Jackson Ferry, the name of which has been familiar to residents of New-York and Brooklyn for years, has died the death of desertion and decay. Started originally before the time of steam as a horse ferry, it struggled on with indifferent patronage, adopting steam when it became a necessity, until something more than a year ago—never, as one of its latest directors assured a TIMES reporter yesterday, having paid anything to its stockholders. The location was unfortunate. The approaches to it on both sides of the river were bad—through "Irishtown" in Brooklyn to the foot of Hudson-avenue, and through the "Hook" in New-York to the foot of Jackson-street. Latterly, too, it encountered much petty persecution from the Brooklyn City Gas Company, which laid claim to the water front at the foot of Hudson-avenue, and endeavored, though unsuccessfully, to prevent the landing of its boats. The New-York City Government, too, treated the enterprise in an illiberal spirit, refusing to repair the piers on either side of the Jackson-street landing, until they became so dilapidated as to be dangerous of approach. Indeed, no attempt at improvement in this regard was made until some time after the ferry was discontinued. Now a new pier graces the upper side of the former landing, and preparations are being made for the second one.

Had the location of the Brooklyn landing been above instead of below the Navy-yard, the result of the Jackson Ferry enterprise would undoubtedly have been different. Could its directors have secured slips in the Wallabout Bay, the necessity for the new ferry enterprise recently projected in the Eastern District of Brooklyn would have been obviated; a different or additional landing-place might have been secured in New-York, and the old company, long struggling against hops, would at last have met with success instead of failure. The proposed new ferry, indeed, seems to be a necessity which even the building of the East River Bridge does not prevent. When the wonderful growth of the region between Clinton-avenue and Broadway, or between the Eastern and Western Districts of Brooklyn, is considered, the desirableness of such a ferry, with its New-York terminus convenient to business centres, must be apparent. There is a large population here which at present is forced to seek passage to New-York by inconvenient routes over the Union Company's ferries, or, equally objectionable, over the South Seventh, Grand or Houston-street ferries. This population, too, is of the class which makes ferries profitable. The ferry was projected primarily as a relief from the exactions and inconveniences forced upon residents of the Eastern District by the Company at present having the monopoly of the ferry business there; but it will serve a much more important purpose—that of furnishing transit facilities directly where they are presently and prospectively most needed. A glance at the map of Brooklyn will satisfy any one of this. West of Broadway (old Division-street) are the Seventh, Ninth, Eleventh, Twentieth and Twenty-first Wards, which in a few years past have given the Fulton Ferry its greatest increase of passengers. Much of the great daily flow of people from these wards to New-York would naturally seek the new ferry, and the tide of travel would be considerably augmented by accessions from the wards east of that central thoroughfare.

The completion of the bridge is a matter of time—some think a matter of uncertainty. Even with both in full operation, it is a question whether the bridge would interfere to any great extent with the traffic of the ferry. Transit by the former would still be remote and inconvenient to the people of the region indicated, though it could of course be availed of in case of ice obstructions in the river. The objection of ice, indeed, has been urged against the proposed ferry location, as the Wallabout is likely in severe weather to become ice-locked; but this objection can easily be overcome with properly constructed boats, and troubles from this source are at worst of short duration. The approaches, too, when compared to those of Fulton Ferry, are made the more pleasant. The steep grade which makes the latter so tedious and generally objectionable, being avoided—an advantage for street railroad cars and for vehicles of all kinds. The car travel of the City will, of course, accommodate itself to the new ferry, as it has to the old ones, as need may require.

There is a proposition, too, seriously considered by the city authorities of Brooklyn, to establish an extensive market for Long Island produce on the site of the old City Park, which, in its present condition, is nothing better than a nuisance. Should such a wise measure be adopted, with an allowance of adequate steam railroad facilities to bring the produce rapidly to the market, the effect upon the business of the ferry can hardly be estimated.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The Use of Sanitary Measures for their Prevention—Treatise by Dr. Moreau Morris.

At a recent meeting of the Medical Journal Association, a paper was read by Dr. MOREAU MORRIS, City Sanitary Superintendent, on the subject of the "Sanitary Care of Contagious Diseases," in which reference was made to the methods employed, the results attained and the convictions arrived at in preventing the spread of contagious diseases in this City.

In the study of sanitary science, or public health, said Dr. MORRIS, the means of prevention of contagious disease becomes one of its most important branches. Sanitary science, as a science has been recognized but a few years. Its claims as such cannot be ignored; its connection with other sciences, its aims and scope, the knowledge it accumulates and applies, the scientific methods it employs, all combine to give it an important place in the front rank of special sciences. "Its aim is the prevention of disease, and the prolongation of human life, and, in effect, to maintain the whole people in the highest efficiency." Its recognition by a special Chair, either in medical or other colleges, must soon take place. Contagious or infectious diseases have certain laws of inception, germination and progression. Their elements are as yet unknown, but their methods of progression or diffusion are better understood, and it is with these that we more directly have to deal. That they have a beginning is but an axiom; that they may be controlled, if not destroyed, is becoming a fact. If we knew the germinal or chemical element which gives rise to the contagious or infectious principle, in each case, it would be easy to destroy or counteract it, but science has not settled these unsettled questions; therefore, while pursuing investigations to discover these subtle elements, the applications of chemical science, in arresting, destroying or transmuting them into innocuous elements is one step toward the solution. What we know is, that they possess qualities of germination, diffusion, portability, and, on proper soil, propagation. By the system of requiring reports of contagious diseases, the Board of Health collects statistics, and at once becomes informed of any contagion that may be presenting itself. In the sanitary cure of diseases, our efforts are directed, first, to their prevention, and secondly to their radication. For the prevention, the sanitary officers of the Board of Health are ever on the alert, seeking out those causes which may give rise to them, whether in public places, streets or avenues, or in houses. The appliances for removing such causes are varied according to the nature of the evil; if they are filthy streets, or accumulations of decomposing matters in cellars, privies or houses, cleansing and disinfection, or access of decomposition, are the means employed. If there is a confined, vitiated atmosphere, openings are made letting in sunlight and air. Under the general term of disinfectants are classed those which arrest fermentation, and those which effect chemical decomposition, and it is with the use of each class of agents that we endeavor to combat and prevent the spread of various contagious diseases.

First—Disinfectants that arrest fermentation: Each variety in this class is either employed separately or mixed with some one of the same class, depending upon the circumstances in each case. Carbolic acid and its preparations are derived from coal-tar, and are used in different degrees of purity. Its effect upon albumen, or albuminous substances, is coagulation. For the fumigation of rooms, disinfecting bedding and clothing the better qualities are used. That containing about seventy per cent. of the pure acid is used for the disinfection of basements, cellars, and privies. For the disinfection of damp cellars and yards a concentrated solution of phosphate sulphate of iron, mixed with a low grade of carbolic acid, is employed; and for privies a solution of sesquichloride of iron of 1.30 specific gravity is used, mixed with ten per cent. of carbolic acid and water. Sulphate of zinc is also found useful in solution with water or in combination with carbolic acid, for infected clothing and bedding. The latter has been found effectual in arresting or destroying the infection upon bedding and clothing in scarlet fever and small-pox, and probably will be found efficient in other contagious fevers.

Second—Disinfectants that effect chemical decomposition: 1. Chloride of lime. The fermentation of filth is checked by its presence, vegetable poisons are destroyed by it. Its need to be liberally employed. Its use in relapsing fever proved invaluable, as likewise with other malignant fevers, depending upon filth and foul atmosphere. It is used either in a dry form, sprinkled upon floors, or in solution upon the floors and wood-work of infected rooms. In damp places, to avoid the hygroscopic properties of the lime, carbonate of soda is added. In the cleansing and disinfection of houses and apartments infected with relapsing fever: 2. Chlorine gas has been extensively used, and with the best results. (3.) Sulphurous acid is one of the most valuable adjuvants for the fumigation of rooms or clothing that have become infected. Its properties are those of arresting fermentation, and probably as a deoxydizer. It is used specially in the disinfection of the contagion of small-pox, scarlatina and yellow fever.

The following methods in the application of disinfectants in special diseases are now employed by the disinfecting corps in the Bureau of Sanitary Inspection of the Health Department of this City, and it may here be said that these methods are found to be the best and most efficient, after many experiments and trials.

The manner in which disinfectants are employed in special cases, may be described as follows: If the patient is still living and upon the premises, the disinfection can only be partial, and must be continued from day to day until removal, recovery or death takes place. The best results are only obtainable when persons in charge of the sick can be relied upon to pursue the plan laid down thoroughly, during the presence of the patient. It must be continuous so long as the disease continues, for poisonous emanations are being constantly thrown off; these must be counteracted.

When the patient is removed from the room finally, the rooms should undergo a thorough disinfection by either of the means before spoken of, viz.: Cleansing with disinfectants, fumigation, and, finally, thorough washing out and a posing every part to the external air for a longer or shorter period, depending upon the nature of the infection and duration of occupancy, before they may be again occupied.

For the sanitary care of patients sick with small-pox, scarlatina, measles, diphtheria, or yellow fever, the general directions would be as follows: The sick room should always be on the upper floor if possible. It should be kept well ventilated with such precautions as not to expose the patient to direct draughts of air, occasionally covering the patient entirely and throwing wide open all doors and windows for a few minutes, replacing the impure atmosphere with a pure one. All vessels for receiving discharges of any kind from patients should contain some disinfecting fluid therein, such as before mentioned as suitable for clothing, and immediately after use be emptied and cleansed by boiling water. Water-closets and privies should also be kept clean and frequently disinfected. The Metropolitan disinfecting fluid, or carbolic acid, may be used for the latter purpose. The sanitary care of contagious diseases is not only a duty the medical profession owe to their patients individually but an obligation to society.

That contagious diseases may be so controlled by proper sanitary care as not to assume epidemic proportions, we think is possible; and it must be confessed that, although we cannot entirely convince all that it has been done in any instance, yet our own experience in dealing with them is that much has been accomplished already, and, with the cordial co-operation of the medical profession, each in his own sphere, such a result is certainly to be expected.

THE DIVIDED DEMOCRACY.

The Kentucky Organ Denounces the Arrogance of the Northern Would-be Leaders.

From the Louisville Ledger, June 27.

Confident and arrogant assertion of superiority long persisted in begets a belief in the mind of a party making such assertion that its excellence is real and not assumed. This observation may be applied to a portion of the Northern Democracy. Since the war some of the would-be leaders of the party in the North have been arrogant, exacting and domineering toward their Southern brethren, and they have been so long inculcating the idea that nothing good or politic can come out of the party, except that which emanates from their section, that they have got really to believe what they at first only assumed. In consideration of their superior excellence, they mildly suggest, and their truculent followers of the South then loudly demand, that the Southern wing of the party shall be only an appendage to the Northern organization. Northern men must make the platforms, select the candidates, and do all other things needful to be done preliminary to the election, and then the Southern Democrats must come meekly forward and be voted—and even this last they must do in all humility lest they give offense.

Now the inquiry is pertinent in this connection: What would the Democratic Party ever have been without its Southern allies? And what can it ever hope to be without their active co-operation and hearty fellowship? There is not an achievement of the party in its long list of victories but what is the work, in the main, of Southern leaders and Southern Democrats. The Southern Democracy know their rights, and they should go into the next National Democratic Convention, not defiantly, but with that manly independence of speech and action which a consciousness of honest intentions always begets. And if, after a free interchange of opinion has taken place, it is determined that the ground selected for the contest by our Northern Democratic friends is advantageous position, why, then there is no fear but what the Southern Democrats will fall into line and fight gallantly for the cause. But, in the meantime, the intimations that the Northern Democrats possess all the political virtues, and the denunciations of Southern leaders for differing with them, had as well cease. To say the least of such a course, it is in very bad taste, and can result in no good.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The most important transaction at the Exchange yesterday, (June 30,) and one attracting much attention, the number present of those interested in real estate being very large, was a sale effected by A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. of four lots, together forming a plot of land 100.11 by 100, located on the north-west corner of Eighth-avenue and Ninety-seventh-street, opposite Central Park. The sale was made by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of PHILIP S. CROOKE, Esq., referee, and the lots brought in the aggregate $63,000, the corner lot being purchased by A. B. STOCKTON for $18,900, and the three adjoining by JOSEPH RICHARDSON for $14,700 each. The prices were thought to be low by the operators present, but in our judgment, taking into consideration the lateness of the season and the fact that the lots were sold at public auction instead of being negotiated at private sale, they may be termed fair, and as such, indicating a firm market. Four similar lots on the north-west corner of the avenue and Ninetieth-street were recently sold for $66,000, but even at these figures, in making a comparison, the difference is not so very great, but only goes to show that the purchasers of yesterday will undoubtedly realize a profit on the investment.

In addition to the above sale, MULLER, WILKINS & Co. disposed of a leasehold property known as No. 75 Robinson-street, north side, between West and Washington streets, embracing a four-story brick building, with lot 23.9 by about 78. The lease is for seventeen years from May 1; ground rent $600 per annum. Sold for $4,200. Purchaser, GEO. S. WALSH. The only other business transacted was a sale by order of trustees, made by E. H. LUDLOW & Co., of the right, title and interest in and to property in the State of Nevada, known as the Austin Silver Mining Company. Sold in four parcels for $8,050 in the total, and purchased by JOHN B. BLYDENBURGH.

The sale of lots at Alturas, in Rockland County, on Thursday, by S. DINGEE & Co., was not only largely attended, but in every other respect a gratifying success, something like $30,000, it is stated, being realized for the foundation of the proposed College. In fact, so satisfactory was the result that it has been determined to hold another auction immediately. This will take place on Tuesday next, July 4, and from the healthy interest manifested at the opening sale, there is no reason to doubt but that the anticipations of the projectors of the enterprise will be fully realized. The details of Thursday's sale will be found below. In all ninety-four plots, comprising 218½ City lots, were disposed of, at an average of about $160 per lot, while the aggregate sum received was $33,830. The following were the purchasers of lots: Dr. Bennett, Brooklyn; Wm. A. B. Pugh, New-York; A. L. Carrillo, New-York; Mr. Cumberson, Brooklyn; Erastus Johnson, Monsey, Rockland County; Col. Williamson, Tenafly, N. J.; Dr. Riggs, New-York; Isaac Pye, Clarkstown; A. L. Brewer, L. Sherwood and S. C. Stevens, Monsey; J. D. Graham, New-York; W. H. Whiton, Piermont; Hiram Bolston, Haverstraw; S. W. Caufield, Nyack; M. Sisson, Hackensack; Chas. E. Hunter, Nyack; Henry Post, Palisade; J. S. Trumbull, New-York; J. S. Brown, Allendale; John Long, Monsey; Mr. Frankenheimer and Dr. Hammond, Spring Valley; Mrs. Mary E. Jabes, New-York; J. B. Jenkins, Oneida; H. B. Fenton, New City; M. Carroll, Monsey; J. R. Miller, Elizabeth, N. J., and Col. A. P. Berthoud, of Newark.

The sale of the remaining portion of the Bowne estate, located near Flushing, Long Island, was also consummated on Thursday by E. A. LAWRENCE, as auctioneer, OLIVER N. CHADWICK purchasing the entire property, 132 acres, for $45,600. The sale was one in partition, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of GEORGE I. MURPHY, Esq., referee. Mr. CHADWICK was the purchaser at the previous sale, held a month ago, of the homestead mansion, with about eleven acres of land.

For today the only auction advertised is that at New-Rochelle, in Westchester County, where WINANS, SANDS & GARRETTSON will dispose of a desirable country residence, located on Webster-avenue, in the immediate vicinity of Huguenot Park. Sale on the premises at 1 P. M. For next week, except the suburban auction at Flushing, the sales advertised are prepared are few in number and of minor importance. Such as are to occur, however, will be referred to on Monday.

Exchange Sales, Friday, June 30.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDIES.

Wife-Murder, Suicide and Wholesale Poisoning.

A Man Cuts His Wife's Throat and Drowns Himself.—A Woman Charged with Poisoning Three Husbands and Two Step-Children.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A Woman Mortally Wounded by Her Husband—He Drowns Himself.

For several days past JAMES POWELL, an Irish laborer, living with his wife, BRIDGET, in one of the cluster of shanties perched on the rocks at Seventy-third-street and Avenue A, has been drinking to excess. Nearly every day this week the pair have quarreled and fought. On Sunday last POWELL beat his wife in a shocking manner. For this she caused his arrest by Officer O'CONNELL, of the Nineteenth Precinct, and he was locked up in the East Fifty-ninth-street Police Station. On Monday POWELL was released on $500 bail by Justice BIXBY, and commenced again drinking to excess and abusing his wife. It is alleged that POWELL was jealous of the attentions paid his wife by a male relative, and that this was what prompted him to abuse her. Soon after noon yesterday, the neighbors heard them quarreling as usual, followed after a time by the screams of the woman, but this had become so common an occurrence of late that they paid little attention to it. Some time afterward, however, they were horrified to observe POWELL leave the house brandishing a large knife. As they came toward him he ran toward Avenue A. He was pursued by some of the more courageous. POWELL ran down the avenue to Seventy-first-street, where he suddenly turned toward the river, and on gaining the edge of the water he leaped in and soon disappeared beneath the surface. Those who entered the shanty of the POWELLS found the woman lying on the floor, bleeding from no less than thirteen wounds—five on the head, two on the throat and three on each hand. These had been inflicted with a large-bladed pocket knife. The room bore ample evidence of the desperate character of the struggle. The furniture was shattered and broken, and there was blood on it and in various parts of the room. The woman had evidently resisted fiercely before being overpowered. She was so weak from loss of blood as to be unable to give any detailed account of the affair. They had quarreled as usual, she said, and he had then attacked her with the knife. She was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where the attendant surgeon gave very little hope of her recovery. POWELL is alleged to have been concerned in the affray at the foot of East Fifty-fifth-street nearly two years ago, when his brother-in-law, RICHARD ALLEN, shot one of a party of roughs who had created a disturbance in the saloon adjoining ALLEN'S bath-houses. POWELL was a large, powerfully built man, and when under the influence of liquor was wont to give free rein to his evil passions.

HORRIBLE STORY.

A Fugitive From Justice—A Woman Charged with Five Murders Arrested at New-Brunswick.

MRS. LYDIA SHERMAN was arrested at New-Brunswick yesterday by officers from Connecticut, who charge her with having poisoned at different times three husbands and two step-children, the offspring of her last husband by a former marriage. The Police of New-Brunswick have had the woman under surveillance for two or three weeks, awaiting the collection of sufficient evidence to warrant her arrest and to enable the officers to secure a requisition from Gov. JEWELL. Yesterday Deputy Sheriff BLAKEMAN, of New-Haven, Conn., arrived at New-Brunswick and communicated all his facts to Chief of Police OLIVER. The woman had gone to New-York, where she was being shadowed by a detective, and the officers awaited her return at the depot for several hours. She came on the 10:5 train, with a companion, and was immediately arrested. This woman married a Jerseyman nearly ten years ago, and after living with him three years, he died suddenly, and under circumstances which occasioned considerable comment. The second husband was married in Connecticut, and died under equally suspicious circumstances, but as nothing was there known of the former mysterious death, no action was taken. Early in 1870, at Derby, Conn., the woman married NELSON H. SHERMAN, a widower, with two children, one six, and the other fifteen years old. Within nine months these three died, all under the same unaccountable circumstances. After the death of the oldest child, which occurred last, Mrs. SHERMAN went to New-Brunswick to visit, and went also to Philadelphia. Immediately after she had left Derby, and succeeding the death of the child, the friends of Mr. SHERMAN took steps to investigate the matter, and the bodies of the wife of Mr. SHERMAN and those of the two children exhumed. The officers who come on to make the arrest state that undeniable evidence of poison was found upon all three of the bodies, and that it was plainly seen in the stomach of the last buried of the three. They also state that they have been able to fix upon the alleged murderer the purchase of poison similar to that of which traces were found. The poison was vegetable and of an unusual character, the officers being unable to give its name. They were not disposed to be communicative, but the above facts were elicited. They were armed with warrants and a requisition from Gov. JEWELL. After the arrest Chief OLIVER and Detective MITCHELL conveyed the woman to the office of District-Attorney HERBERT, where she was detained until o'clock, at which time she was taken to New-Haven, accompanied by Sheriff BLAKEMAN and Detective MITCHELL. The statements of the officers leave no doubt that the woman is guilty of one of the most startling and sensational series of crimes that has ever been committed in this part of the country. On being charged with the crime she manifested surprise, either real or very well assumed. She gave appearance of guilt, and beyond the simple surprise and the assertion of her innocence did not seem to be at all affected.

OTHER CRIMES.

Probable Homicide—A Man's Skull Fractured with a Dumb-Bell.

GEORGE H. WARD, residing in Ninth-avenue, between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth streets, last evening, accompanied by a friend, called at the residence of MRS. HOLLAND, No. 967 Third-avenue. While there one of the boarders, named ALEXANDER IVES, without any provocation, caught up a dumb-bell, and with it struck WARD on the head, fracturing his skull, and inflicting a probably fatal wound. The wounded man was removed to Bellevue Hospital. IVES was arrested and locked up in the East Fifty-ninth-street Police Station.

More Poisoning Cases.

ANDREW HICKS, aged forty years, last evening hired a room at No. 105 South-street, and took a dose of laudanum. He was removed to the Park Hospital.

PETER MCCORRY, aged six years, of No. 332 East Thirty-sixth-street, last evening drank some muriatic acid, and is not expected to recover.

CARRIE WINDUST, of No. 226 East Thirty-fourth-street, while intoxicated, last evening, took a quantity of COSTAR'S rat exterminator, which she had purchased at SPANGENBURG & BOLTTICHER'S drug-store, at No. 508 Third-avenue. She was removed to Bellevue Hospital.

FRANK RASCAULP, a German, aged fifty-two years, of No. 107 Sheriff-street, last evening took a quantity of arsenic. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Murderous Assaults.

HANNAH CONNORS and JOANNA SULLIVAN had an altercation in Park-street, last evening, and HANNAH was struck on the head with a pail, receiving a severe wound. The assailant was arrested.

OWEN REILLY, of No. 2 Marion-street, while drunk, last evening, tore his wife's cheek open from the mouth for the space of two inches, and brutally beat his daughter CATHARINE. He was arrested.

The Murderer Foster—Judge Ingraham Refuses to Hear an Application for a Stay.

In the case of WILLIAM FOSTER, condemned for the murder of AVERY D. PUTNAM, Ex-Judge STUART yesterday applied for leave to make a motion before Judge INGRAHAM for a writ of error and stay of proceedings. Judge INGRAHAM, in view of the fact that he and Judge BARNARD constitute the General Term, before whom the appeal must first be heard, deemed it improper to hear any discussion, and therefore declined to entertain the motion. Judge STUART, it is understood, will make his application to Judge BRADY next.

Extensive Fire in West Fifty-Second-Street—Loss Nearly $60,000.

Early last evening, a fire occurred in the drying-room above the boiler on the first floor of the large five-story double building, Nos. 221 and 223 West Fifty-second-street, known as the New-York Moulding and Planing Mill, owned and occupied by Messrs. A. T. SERRELL & SON. The building had a frontage of fifty feet, and was 100 feet in depth. Through this immense building the flames rapidly ran, defying the utmost efforts of the firemen, who were promptly on the ground. In less than two hours the whole interior was burned out, and but little more than the four walls was left standing. Mr. SEWELL estimates his loss on building at $25,000, and on machinery and stock $15,000 each; insured for $30,000 on all. The shed No. 225, and the dwelling No. 227, both owned by SEWELL, were damaged by water. F. G. SUTTON'S milk-depot, a wooden building on the side of the mill, was somewhat damaged by fire and water. Several of the frame buildings in the vicinity narrowly escaped destruction.

CARING FOR THE SAILOR.

Thirty-fifth Anniversary of the Seamen's Retreat Hospital—Its Foundation—Treatment of the Patients.

Of the many anniversaries that fall on our national holiday, none can bring back more pleasing recollections to the mind of the old "tar" than the laying of the foundation-stone of the Seamen's Retreat Hospital of this port, which took place on the Fourth of July, 1834, Hon. C. W. LAWRENCE, Mayor, officiating, assisted by Dr. J. S. WESTERVELT, Health Officer, and other influential gentlemen. Since that time the Retreat Hospital has been of infinite benefit to the sick and wounded seamen who ever found a home within its walls. From the opening up to the present time 58,215 patients have been received, 47,029 have been cured, 4,917 relieved, 1,777 discharged at their own request, and 2,813 have died.

THE BUILDING AND GROUNDS.

The grounds are situated between Stapleton and Vanderbilt Landing, Staten Island, and cover over thirty-five acres of beautiful land, situate on a slight elevation overlooking the Bay and the delightful scenery surrounding. Part of the ground is farmed for the use of the hospital, covered with out-houses, bake-houses, carpenters' shops and other requisites, while in other parts the grass grows to an unusual height, and the most beautiful willows on the island trail their weeping leaves along the ground, making a most delightful shade for sultry days. The air is fresh and pure, and the entire surroundings are healthful and pleasant to the eye. The hospital is an imposing gray-stone structure, with shaded verandahs all round the outside for the use of convalescent patients. The halls are wide and the wards roomy, lightsome and airy, cleanliness prevails in every portion, and every effort that could be made to make the sailor comfortable and happy can be seen in the various surroundings. One especially good feature about the hospital is that its management contrive to increase the number of wards, thereby giving more fresh air to each patient—an indispensable prerequisite to the proper treatment of sick people.

On the ground floor are situated the office of the institution, the dispensary and the private apartments of the House Surgeon, Dr. D. HENRY JOHNSON, who has had much experience with the army during the war in the hospitals and in the field, and also in California. Near to the doctor's rooms is the library, which in itself is a decided literary curiosity, consisting of both ancient and modern books, printed in almost every European tongue, with many extraordinary specimens from the West Indies and other islands. The room is large and comfortable, and is opened to the patients four hours every day. Books may also be taken up to the wards. A very fair pathological cabinet is also in the library.

THE OBJECTS OF THE HOSPITAL.

This humane institution was established for the benefit of seamen visiting our port who may either have contracted illness on the voyage or on shore, or met with some accident which temporarily prevented them from doing duty. Admission is gained very simply. The Captain signs a card stating that the man is ill; this is then countersigned by the Consul; and then the patient has no further trouble than to go to the office at Old Slip, when he is at once sent, free of all expense, to the hospital, where he is examined by the physicians and assigned to one of the wards. His name, age, place of birth, ship and disease are then carefully entered in the books, so that at any moment everything about the man may be told in a few minutes. The patient is visited twice a day, and oftener if necessary, and receives the best of food and nourishment, and all extras which his case may demand. He is then left to make himself happy as he can. He is neither treated as an intruder, nor obliged to work when convalescing. Those persons who do the work about the house and farm are all hired hands; yet to give "Jack" his due, the physician-in-chief, Dr. KING, says that sometimes when a poor fellow is getting better he will actually go to the office and ask for some light work, in order to keep "his hands in." Some very pretty specimens of boats and ships have been made by their industrious hands. One little steamer, twenty feet long, has her own boilers and wheels, manufactures her own steam, and can run over 100 yards through the water in good time. As evidence that the men are not hurried out or sent from the hospital partially cured, may be given the information that among the inmates one was four years in the institution; another three years and one month; another three years and nine months; and so on. The patient is never sent from the hospital unless completely cured. Sometimes, however, the roving disposition of Jack gets the better of him, and he sometimes requests the doctor's permission to leave before he is discharged. He cannot be prevented, but invariably receives the best advice and caution from the doctor.

The Seamen's Retreat Hospital is supported by what is called the Seamen's TAX, which is somewhere about fifty cents per caput for every man on board each ship entering port, and so on in ratio for the officers up to the Captain. This, then, entitles them to admission without any extra charge. This tax cannot be enforced, and therefore it is left to the option of shipmasters or owners to pay it or not. The shipping merchants of New-York and other ports should, in justice to their sailors, combine to help an institution which cares for the poor tar in his day of trouble and despondency. A very small sum from each would secure for "Jack" a genuine "Retreat" where his wounds would be dressed and his diseases cured.

All nations use the Retreat. The Austrian war-steamer, the Novara, left four of her men after her in the hospital, two of whom since died. Of course the Austrian Consul paid the expenses. During the year one patient was sent to his home by the British Consul. Six insane patients were sent to the Insane Asylum at Northampton, and the charitable Trustees of the Retreat sent one to his home in the West Indies. There are at present in the hospital men from different countries—even one from Finland, a poor fellow who cannot make himself understood except by signs. The Physician-in-Chief, Dr. C. HENRY KING, is fitted for the treatment of such old warriors, having been long connected with the United States Army as Assistant Surgeon to the Seventh United States Infantry and Fifth United States Artillery, and also Medical Examiner of several of our public Boards.

THE CEMETERY.

When Jack lays down his head and casts anchor forever, his body is here treated in the most respectful manner, and is laid with due ceremony beneath the shadows of the willows which cover the small cemetery of the hospital, where the record of death and place of burial are entered in a book kept so well that a few days ago a woman from Chicago came to look after a brother she had not seen for years, and was at once shown the spot where the body had lain for fourteen Summers. The cemetery, the farms, gardens, and all the outer business is conducted under the management of Mr. D. A. EDGAR, Superintendent—a son of Dr. EDGAR, President of the Richmond County Medical Society. In conclusion it may be remarked that in the management, both by the trustees, the physician, Superintendent and other officers, the Seamen's Retreat Hospital cannot be excelled. It is a harbor for the poor sick sailor, and should command the sympathy of all who are acquainted with the perils, risks and trials of a sailor's life.

Opening of the New Harlem and Hudson River Railroad Depot.

The new depot on Forty-first-street for the Harlem and Hudson River Railroads is now nearly completed, and today the general officers of transfer and the like will be moved there. The offices of the New-Haven and Harlem Railroads will be transferred there sometime during next week. As considerable work has yet to be done in connection with the passenger department, the trains on the New-Haven and Harlem Roads will run from their present depot until the 1st of August. The terminus of the Hudson River and Central Railroads will not be changed until the 1st of September, owing to the fact that the connection track in Westchester County will not be finished until that time. Among the many additions which may yet be made to the new depot, it is understood that the statue of Commodore VANDERBILT, which now adorns the façade of the freight depot in St. John's-square, may be removed and placed in the empty niche on the Forty-first-street side of the former imposing edifice.

The New Passenger and Baggage Express—Reduction of Hack Fares.

Another meeting of the Association of Licensed Hackmen and Expressmen, of this City, for the purpose of lowering the fare of passengers to fifty cents to any part of the City between the Battery and Twenty-seventh-street, and the carrying of baggage only to any part of the City for twenty-five cents, was held at No. 129 Spring-street, last evening, JOHN W. MARION in the chair. Money was liberally contributed to assist the objects of the Association, and to purchase 100 badges, to be worn upon the hat, marked "Association Carriages," and "Association Express." Over 100 hundred members are now enrolled, others desire admission, and it is expected that all the licensed hackmen in the City will join the combination. The Association feel confident that they can more than compete with the new Transfer and Crystal Cab Company, by offering better accommodations for less money, when it is taken into consideration that the fifty cents charged includes the carrying of the baggage.

Above Twenty-seventh-street to Forty-second, twenty-five cents extra will be charged for each passenger, and above that no new rates are now fixed. Persons who desire the exclusive use of a carriage will be charged at the rate for four persons. Thursday, July 6, is the day fixed by the Association for the commencement of operations.

MORE CHURCH TROUBLES.

A Rupture in the Episcopal Theological Seminary—Charges Against the Dean, Rev. Dr. Forbes.

A ruptue has taken place in the Episcopal General Theological Seminary, which threatens serious consequences. The matter in brief is as follows: For some twenty-five years the Theological Seminary has been without a regular head, and it was not until Feb. 24, 1870, that Rev. JOHN MURRAY FORBES, D.D., was appointed Dean of the institution. At the time of his appointment the Seminary was under the charge of a board of professors, and had by their influence inclined very decidedly toward the ritualistic side of the Episcopal form of belief; so that on entering his office the new dean found that it was necessary to take active measures to counteract these tendencies. He met with strenuous opposition in this procedure, both from members of the Faculty and from some of the students; though by the Trustees, who are prominent churchmen in almost every State in the Union, and by the friends of the institution generally, his course was strongly sustained. A short time since, however, Prof. SEYMOUR, of the Seminary, who had been one of the most stubborn of the opponents of the new Dean in his attempt at reform, published a pamphlet entitled A Defense Against the Assaults of the Dean, and Other Professors of the Theological Seminary. This paper was sent secretly to all the Bishops and leading Episcopal clergymen in the country, with the request, written on the back, that it should not be made public. It contained a variety of charges against Dr. FORBES, accusing him of not possessing a proper theological education, of secretly endeavoring to lead the students over to the Roman Catholic Church, and of the same time neglecting to attend to the duties of his position in not being at prayers oftener than twice a week. A multitude of facts were brought up to sustain these charges, and throughout the paper it was indirectly urged that the future of the Episcopal Church was greatly endangered by the retention of Dr. FORBES in the office of Dean. Two days before the annual meeting a copy of this pamphlet was sent to Dr. FORBES, which was the first intimation he had received of it. At the meeting which took place on Thursday evening, and which was attended by a large numbers of Bishops from the Southern and Western States, besides prominent laity, Bishop ATKINSON, of North Carolina, alluded to the fact of the pamphlet having been published, and circulated, and asked if some action should not be taken in reference to it. After a moment's discussion it was agreed to lay the matter on the table; but at this juncture Dean FORBES arose and said that he had hoped the matter would not have been mentioned, but as it had been there was no course left for him but to resign the charge they had confided to him.

He then left the room, but the trustees unanimously adopted a resolution refusing to accept the resignation, and asking the Dean to preside at the Commencement, which was to take place the next day. While speaking in his defense, Judge BELL, one of the most zealous friends of the Dean, was attacked by disease of the heart, and died almost instantly. This brought the meeting to an abrupt ending.

At the second meeting, which took place yesterday morning, Dr. FORBES said that he had been greatly pleased by the resolution that had been passed, and that he would retain the position for the present, with the understanding that the trustees should take immediate action toward finding or installing a successor to his position. The whole matter has created an intense excitement among the clergy of this City.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

There is exhibited in an obscure store in this City a large bell, which is called the "Silver Toy," and is said to have been imported from Soo Chow, in China, in which place it was suspended over the gate of the city and rung on grand occasions. From its appearance this story is most plausible, for it is entirely covered with Chinese emblems, some of which were cast with the bell and others have been engraved since. It is about thirty inches high and fourteen inches in diameter at its base. It bears the date 1622 on its rim.

The sentence of the Court-martial recently convened on Governor's Island, with reference to the stabbing affray which took place there last April, has just been promulgated. The prisoner, FRANCIS LOHMAN, music-boy attached to Company B, who stabbed private DANIEL ALLEN in the back with a pocket-knife in the month above-mentioned, is condemned to three months' imprisonment and hard labor, and to forfeit seven-eighths of his monthly pay. ALLEN, who was stabbed, has been discharged the service.

The California big tree, known as the Forest King, seventy-six feet in circumference, now on exhibition at the Plaza, corner of Fifty-ninth-street and Fifth-avenue, is one of the greatest wonders ever seen here. The task of felling it and preparing it for exhibition required the continuous services of four men 130 days. Its annular rings show it to be over 1,500 years old. Its height was 275 feet.

A correspondent in Connecticut wishes to know how it is that New-York dealers only return from five to six cents per pound for veal calves, when the TIMES reports sales at eleven and a half cents. The truth is that the farmer is swindled by dealing with middlemen, who make false reports to principals. One of these men declared angrily to a reporter, the other day, that we "were ruining their business by telling the truth about their sales."

The Park Commissioners cannot do a better work than to remove the stagnant water now in one of the fountains in the City Hall Park, on the easterly side. Yesterday it was green as the grass around it, and numerous small boys, having nothing else to do, were wading therein and stirring up its foul depths at every step. But the Mayor has a passion for the green, and this may lead to the perpetuity of the offense.

President GRANT and his son FREDERICK, Secretary BOUTWELL and Col. HORACE PORTER arrived at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, yesterday morning, from Washington. Secretary BOUTWELL proceeded early in the morning to Groton, Mass. Senator CONKLING breakfasted with the President and party, the latter went to Long Branch in the afternoon.

EHRICH MORDENHOLZ, a German sailor boarding-house keeper at No. 382 Water-street, was committed yesterday by Justice HOGAN for withholding $145 belonging to Wm. LAWRENCE, a sailor, who had intrusted it to him for safe keeping. LAWRENCE and a young woman named MARIA BAKER, who saw the money paid, were sent to the House of Detention as witnesses.

Today Mr. G. A. OSGOOD will receive on board his yacht, the Fleetwing, now lying at Staten Island, and about to leave for Cape May, one of the most handsomely constructed boats ever built in this City. It is 25 feet long, 4 feet 4 inches wide, 20 inches in depth, and is constructed of alternate layers of white and Spanish cedar. It cost upward of $500.

The samples of the abuses suffered by immigrants at Castle Garden mentioned in yesterday's TIMES were not in the least exaggerated. It was an error, however, to say that the chief clerk of the Ward's Island Bureau was the party who acted rudely to persons in search of information. On the contrary, it was one of the clerks in the Information Bureau.

Yesterday the sloop-yacht Restless, belonging to the Brooks Yacht Club, was sold by auction off the Battery, by Messrs. BURDETT & DENIS. The bidding commenced at $200, and the yacht was finally knocked down to Mr. J. B. SNELL for $950. Since last season she has been completely overhauled and fitted, and is in complete running order.

FREDERICK OTTO, a carman, of No. 21 Essex-street, a few days ago was bitten by a dog belonging to him. He thought little of the matter, but a short time afterward the leg bitten became inflamed, symptoms of hydrophobia appeared, and notwithstanding the best medical attention, the man died yesterday in great agony.

Perhaps the greatest assemblage of flies in any one place in this City may be seen around a cooper-shop in the Bowery, where several hundred old sugar-barrels are piled up, awaiting to be destroyed or reconstructed. These are covered with particles of sugar, which attract the insects from far and near.

The signal station in Broadway, a description of which has already been given in the TIMES, is progressing satisfactorily. The greater part of the iron and brick work is completed, and the carpenters are now at work. It is most probable that it will be formally opened early in the Autumn.
